Garage and Yard Sales . . . Illegal, But Condoned

Garage Sale. Yard Sale.
At times it seems signs proclaiming such events literally grow on trees . . . and posts and telephone poles.
It might come as a surprise to some people, though, that such sales are illegal in the City of Kingston in residential areas.
City Building Inspector George E. Radcliffe explained that garage sales and the like in residential areas are a violation of the zoning ordinance.
"In order for anybody to operate them legally they would have to move into a commercial zone," Radcliffe said.
Nevertheless, garage sales are obviously tolerated in the city's residential areas.
Complaints about such sales are rare, Radcliffe explained, and as long as people don't run them continuously, no steps are taken by his office to stop the sales.
"It's a decent, neat way of getting rid of a lot of stuff which might have to be carted away by the board of public works," he said.
Occasionally, Radcliffe told the Freeman, he has had to speak to residents who run the sales weekend after weekend. In fact, one woman admitted she went around picking up junk from the curbs on a daily basis to take home to sell in a "garage sale." Others have gathered items from Neighbors for the sales.
Such sales have been stopped without having to haul the enterprising merchants into court through simple warnings, Radcliffe explained.
"They realized that if it didn't stop, it would end up in court," he said.
What about changing the zoning ordinance so garage sales are legal? It wouldn't work, according to Radcliffe, because it would be virtually impossible to prove that a commercial venture is not a garage sale.

Judge to Rule On the Fate Of Karen Ann

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (UPI) — For nearly seven months, Karen Ann Quinlan has lain in a coma, unaware her parents' plea that the machine keeping her alive be turned off and that she be allowed "to die with grace and dignity" has stirred a major controversy over the "right to die."
Six neurologists testified at a five-day civil trial that ended Oct. 27 that the 21-year-old woman had suffered irreversible brain damage and was in a "chronic vegetative state."
But they also said that while Karen could never recover, she was indeed alive and had sporadic brain activity — the generally accepted definition of life.
Superior Court Judge Robert Muir Jr. called the principals in the case to a closed session later today to hand down a written verdict on a request by Karen's parents that the use of a lifesustaining respirator be terminated.
The Catholic church, in a pastoral letter read at Mass Sunday in parishes throughout the Diocese of Paterson, said the parents' decision to seek removal of the respirator is "morally correct."
Bishop Lawrence B. Casey urged church members to read the nine-page position paper which he drafted and released as the church's official stand in the case. The bishop also asked the church goers to pray for the Quinlans and others connected with the case.
He said doctors are not required to use extraordinary mechanical means to prevent a patient from dying a natural death "when it is inevitable and all hope of a return to an even partial exercise of human life is irreparably lost."
Judge Muir, 43, a trim, balding six-footer who is an ordained elder in the Presbyterian Church, has spent 14 days preparing his decision.
Attorneys opposing the Quinlans' request said they would appeal an unfavorable decision. The Quinlans have not said whether they would appeal.
Karen has been in a coma since April 14 when she mixed tranquilizers and alcohol at a birthday party for a friend. At St. Clare's Hospital in Den- ville, N.J., Karen is fed through tubes. Her weight has dropped to about 60 pounds — half her normal weight.
The case has drawn nationwide attention because Muir's decision could, to some extent, provide a legal definition of death. Traditionally, doctors subscribe to the "Harvard Criteria" — brain death — as a prerequisite for terminating artificial life supports.
Karen's parents, Joseph and Julia Quinlan, asked the court to permit their adopted daughter to "die with grace and dignity." They asked Muir to appoint Quinlan, a supervisor for a pharmaceutical company, as Karen's legal guardian for the express purpose of halting use of the respirator.
It was a matter of privacy and religious freedom, they said, because the Roman Catholic Church does not require the use of extraordinary means to preserve life.
Mrs. Quinlan testified that Karen, on at least three different occasions, specifically told her she did not want her life maintained artificially.
The state of New Jersey. Karen's doctors and her court-appointed guardian, Donald R. Coburn, argued that a decision in favor of the Quinlans would open the door to legalized euthanasia — mercy killing — and would result in thousands of deaths.

Marines Are 200 Years Old

WASHINGTON — President Ford saluted the U.S. Marine Corps on its 200th birthday today, praising the fighting force for its valor and pledging to keep it ready for new threats to peace.
"The corps has become a living monument to bravery and self-sacrifice," Ford said in a speech prepared for bicentennial ceremonies in Arlington, Va., at the Iwo Jima Memorial, a statue depicting a group of Marines raising the American flag in a World War II battle for that Pacific island.

Alert Continues in Portugal

LISBON, Portugal — "The people are serene," cried Prime Minister Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo to 50,000 panickstricken supporters in Lisbon's Black Horse Square. "Viva Portugal."
But the tear gas and gunfire in the square combined with a nationwide military alert to belie Azevedo's words.
The army, navy and air force were "on alert" for the third consecutive day today. The police and national guard remained on a "state of vigilance."
Four persons were injured Sunday in the hour-long confrontation in the square between pro-government demonstrators and leftist military police.

Papal Envoy to Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The Vatican launched an initiative for peace in strife-torn Lebanon today with Pope Paul VI's personal envoy in town for talks with rival Christian and Moslem militia leaders.
Cardinal Paolo Bertoli, the papal envoy, scheduled talks with top officials including President Suleiman Franjeh, Premier Rashid Karami and Interior Minister Camille Chamoun.
Bertoli, who arrived Sunday bearing a letter to Franjeh from the pontiff, said his mission was "aimed at notifying the government and Christian and Islamic communities of His Holiness' sympathy and readiness to make every effort to restore peace between the conflicting parties."

Four Hostages Seized

TUNIS, Tunisia — A Tunisian waving a submachine gun seized four hostages in the Belgian embassy today, demanding that his Belgian wife come to join him in Tunis, Belgian officials said.
A member of the embassy staff said the gunman was holding two diplomats and two secretaries.
"He entered the embassy very normally as any visitor," an embassy employee said. "But then he pulled out a gun and asked to be taken to the consular officer."

New Life for Convicted Judge

MANCHESTER, Mich. — John B. Swainson settled into private life today for the first time in 20 years with only a World War II disability pension and hope that his appeal of a conviction which cost him his job will succeed.
Swainson resigned from the state's high court Friday under the cloud of a federal perjury conviction. He was the first sitting state justice to face felony charges.
A jury's guilty verdict Nov. 2 blotted his career during which he served as governor, lieutenant governor, state senator and circuit court judge.

Democracy Campaign in Spain

MADRID, Spain — The birth of a campaign for Western-style democracy in Spain has overshadowed Generalissimo Francisco Franco's struggle for survival.
The leading Roman Catholic prelate in Spain added his voice Sunday to the increasing calls for an end to authoritarian rule in the country.
Cardinal Vicente Tarancon, the archbishop of Madrid, said all Spaniards should participate in the nation's political life in the post-Franco era.

No Role Planned for Nixon

WASHINGTON — It would not be in Richard M. Nixon's "best interest" to attempt to take up a new role in public life, President Ford said Sunday.
Ford was asked on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press" if he would consider giving Nixon any role, even a ceremonial one, in his administration.
"I see no possibility of that," replied the President.

A 3,000 Foot Fall . . . Pilot Kicks Gunman Out

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (UPI) — The hijacker gave charter pilot Richard Leibundguth a choice — die by a bullet or in a plane crash. With that, the pilot kicked the gunman out the door to his own death.
The hijacker, Jack R. Johnson, 19, of Evansville, Ind., plunged 3,000 feet into a muddy southeastern Missouri soybean field.
Leibundguth said he put the single-engine Cessna 150 into a suicide spin on orders from Johnson — but as the craft hurtled toward the ground, he booted the hijacker out the door.
The pilot said Johnson "had told me I had a choice of dying in an airplane crash or dying of a bullet wound."
Leibundguth said Johnson, recently released from the Army on a medical discharge, paid him $5 to "take a joyride around Evansville." Leibundguth is an employee of a charter service, Tri-State Aero Co., in Evansville.
A few minutes into the flight, the pilot said, Johnson pulled a .22-caliber pistol and told him to fly to the Kentucky Lake area of Kentucky.

During the flight Johnson talked about suicide and said he had personal problems, Leibundguth said.
When the plane was over Kentucky Lake, Johnson said the "area below is too populated" and ordered the pilot to fly around Paducah, Ky., and on across the Mississippi River into Missouri.
At 8,000 feet altitude, the pilot said, Johnson shoved the pistol into his side and ordered him to put the plane into a suicide dive. Leibundguth complied.
"After losing little more than 5,000 feet, I spun the plane to the right — and kicked."
"The pilot felt the gun leave his side . . . saw the door on the right side was open and rolled the plane to the right," said Mississippi County Sheriff W.J. Simmons said. "The pilot kicked the passenger and out he went."
Simmons found the body in the soggy field eight miles north of Charleston. The gun was not recovered.

It Was a Hot Weekend

KINGSTON
If area residents weren't exactly sweltering on Saturday, some were eyeing their recently drained pools with regret, and others switched on air conditioners in the record-breaking November heat.
As the day progressed, temperatures zoomed from a low of 56 to an all-time high of 74, establishing a record high for Nov. 8. The previous high was set almost 40 years ago when thermometers settled at 72 in 1938.
And, while Sunday was a day more attuned to iced tea than hot chocolate (the temperature climbed from a low of 48 to a high of 68), no record was set.
Still, in spite of the fact that three-fourths inches of rain fell locally early Saturday morning between 1 and 5 a.m., it was an unseasonably warm weekend. Spectators at foot- ball games around the county soaked up the sun in their shirtsleeves, tennis courts did a waiting line business, barefoot strollers shed jeans for shorts, and ice cream cones were much in evidence.
By this morning, bare feet gave way to rain boots and the autumn heat wave was officially over as the Kingston City engineer's office recorded a low of 55 degrees and predicted increasingly heavier rains for later in the day. But, while it lasted, June in November went into the record books locally, according to Norwood "Doc" Licke, who keeps track of the weather statistics at the engineer's office here.
That it was a weekend so rare for so late in the year was made even more evident in the forecast for light snow in portions of northern New York tonight.

Mayone Is 'Disturbed' By Kowalik Criticism

By Matt Spireng
KINGSTON
Reacting to a charge of "un-professionalism" leveled against him last week by State Police Zone Supervisor Lt. Stanley Kowalik, Sheriff Thomas Mayone today issued a press release, stating that he is disturbed by "Kowalik's interest in maintaining his own image by dredging up an obscure and somewhat inaccurate news article in an out-of-county publication."
Kowalik's criticism of May- one concerned a statement reportedly released by the sheriff to a news media wire service in which he claims credit for solving a major murder case involving a Kingston-area teenager picked up in October by state police.
Mayone, asked today whether he issued the highly inaccurate press release to the wire service, told the Freeman, "I don't remember ever giving anything like that. I only told the wire service the police were picking up the juvenile."
"I realize that this state police official and his organization are still suffering from unfavorable publicity," Mayone said in his press release. "The slaughter of a pet deer in New Paltz and the 'overkill' arrest that followed and the reported gestapo-like political card file on New York residents have shocked the community this year."
Charging that Kowalik has implied he would sanction the withdrawal of state police from Ulster County and that Kowalik "is apparently running for the appointed post of state police superintendent," Mayone added, "Even Mr. Kowalik is not an absolute monarch in Ulster County."
Noting that the sheriff is "the highest elected constitutional officer in Ulster County," Mayone said, "I must involve myself with local criminal investigations such as the Eopous incident and leave crimes committed in the state of Utah to the New York State Police."
"The sheriff in Ulster County is not elected by readers of an out of county publication. The Ulster County Sheriff's Department will continue to walk tall," Mayone concluded.

'Execution' In Florida

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI) — Two men were found Sunday by a hunter in a lonely field with bullet holes in their heads and bloody rags covering their mangled faces — victims of what police described as an "execution."

"At first I thought it was a barroom-type brawl murder," said Calvin Spencer, whose bird dog discovered the bodies. "But then we saw the second body and I knew it was something else."

Polk County sheriff's spokesman Dan Taylor said both of the unidentified men, described as "blue collar types" between 45 and 50, had been shot in the left side of the head with a 30-30 rifle, and both apparently were standing when they were killed.

"It looks like an execution," Taylor said.

One man was white-haired and wearing a T-shirt with blue trousers. The other, a blond, was wearing a white T-shirt and green work trousers. He had a moustache, a deformity of the upper lip and a burn scar on his left arm.

Another Chance

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Charles Manson follower Lynette Fromme, accused of trying to kill President Ford, is getting one more chance to behave in court — or face the prospect of watching her trial on closed-circuit television.

After repeated disruptions by Miss Fromme and her ejection from the courtroom, U.S. District Judge Thomas MacBride said she would be allowed the opportunity today to show she could be a "good girl" during her trial.

Miss Fromme, 27, already has lost her right to act as her own attorney. The judge said lawyer John Vurga, whom he had appointed to help the red-haired defendant, would have to handle the case himself.

Her outbursts earlier in the proceedings included rejecting Vurga, trying abruptly to change her plea from innocent to guilty and demanding that Manson, serving a life term at San Quentin for the 1969 Tate-LaBianca murders, be given a new trial.

MacBride failed in his attempts to cut her off Friday, he instructed U.S. marshals to remove her to a room where she could watch proceedings on closed-circuit television.

"It's going to get bloody if the family is not allowed to speak," Miss Fromme shouted as she was seized and marched from the courtroom.

U.S. Marshal Arthur Van Court told the judge Miss Fromme refused to view the proceedings on television monitors and quoted her as saying "It would make me crazy."

Vurga was still cross-examining Secret Service agent Larry Buendorf, who disarmed Miss Fromme during the Sept. 5 incident outside the state Capitol at Sacramento.

Buendorf testified earlier Miss Fromme struggled with him, "attempting to resist my hand or to fire the weapon." "She said 'it didn't go off, it didn't go off,' and said it with disbelief," the 37-year-old ex-Navy combat pilot testified.

Ulster Race 'Unofficial'

An unofficial recount shows no changes in two extremely close Town of Ulster elections, according to Election Commissioner Edwin F. Callahan.

Callahan said Monday that the recount shows incumbent Republican Supervisor Carmine Sabino a winner by 18 votes over Democratic challenger George Starkman and Democrat Robert Mitchell a four-vote winner over Republican Ralph Hayner in the Officers were unable to match the fingerprints with those on file at the Polk County sheriff's office in Bartow, and no missing persons reports fitting their description had been filed.

Blood-soaked rags covered the heads of both men. One had his mouth taped shut.

No wallets or identification were found on either body, but both had sets of keys and one had a pocket knife.

Chief Is Suspended but...

PEKIN, Ill. (UPI) — Police Chief Don Smith refused to carry out an order to suspend four of his officers. Result: Smith himself today was under suspension — but still on the job.

"I'm still there," Smith said. "The mayor has asked that I not make any more statements and I'm going to honor that request."

It started when the police and fire commission ordered Smith to suspend four officers for 30 days without pay. It accused of "slandering, causing false information, written notice of a derogatory nature and conduct unbecoming to an officer."

The officers had circulated petitions calling for removal of the three-member commission.

Smith maintains the officers were within the law in presenting their grievances to the city council and refused to obey the suspension order.

"Because of the manpower situation of my department," Smith said, "four officers facing a 30-day suspension was irresponsible and it was an arbitrary suspension."

For that, the commission suspended the chief himself. Smith responded, "I do not honor this suspension if this is what they call a suspension," and described the charges against him as "nebulous" and "asinine."

Glenn Hoffman, head of the commission, said Sunday night the commission was following its interpretation of the rules in suspending the four officers and the police chief.

"They're just names to me," Hoffman said. "We are appointed by the mayor. We don't get a salary — we get a lot of abuse. As far as suspending the chief of police, we felt we had cause."

The police department employs 39 officers. Smith said several will take vacation in the next few weeks, four are trainees and two are in multi-jurisdiction units.

"I wasn't arguing the part of the commission to charge or set a hearing on these charges," Smith said. "The basic fact was ... the action didn't warrant the elimination of those officers from the department."

Smith, 50, said he doesn't know what will happen now. He's not even sure who has the power to fire him. The commission oversees the fire and police departments, but Smith was hired by the mayor and city council.

Smith said he began as a Pekin policeman in 1948 and became chief 10 years later. He retired in 1969 but then became chief again in March.

... 'And in This Corner'

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The wet T-shirt contest is a beauty contest based on the maxim that it's what's up front that counts. Most contestants are students or young working girls. Many are coaxed from the disco crowd with taunts and the chance of winning a cash prize.

She collected roars of approval and the $75 "maxi" prize against three busty challengers Sunday in the latest staging of an exhibitionist craze that has swept the city like a hurricane — wet T-shirt contests.

A less well-endowed but equally agreeable young lady won the $75 booby prize against a half-dozen others. Occasionally during the flesh parade recorded howls of a pack of dogs blared over the disco speakers and one pendulous but worn looking girl with a tattoo drew shouts of "Get the hook!"

They are provided with T-shirts by the host bar and wet down with water until every curve is clearly visible through the clinging cotton. Then they are paraded before the crowd to shout its approval.

Cash prizes are given to the biggest and the smallest-chested of the girls. The few who withstand the cajoling and remain covered never win.

It may be a pox on the feminist movement but the such as Foxy Lady contests for wet T-shirt fad is great for the sexy and flashy dressers, but bars, which lay on a cover the ultimate may be yet to charge of $1 or $2 for the come.

events and pack the spectators wall to wall. And the contestants appear to enjoy themselves.

"It's fantastic," said maxi winner Debbie Tomlinson, a buxom 24-year-old brunette who moved to New Orleans from Jacksonville, Fla. three weeks ago.

Miss Tomlinson won $50 in a previous contest and an offer of a job at the host bar.

"I'll do it again wherever there's another one," she said.

Red-haired mini-winner Tammy Ward, 18, who added to her appeal by writhing suggestively, said it was her first try.

"It was a lot of fun," she said. "I was a little embarrassed at first but I got over it."

There have been variations such as Foxy Lady contests for the sexy and flashy dressers, but the ultimate may be yet to come.

Government Action Against GM Looms

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors' top executives are silent about reports the federal government may try to break up the world's largest auto company in what would be the biggest antitrust action in six decades.

Since reports of the possible action began circulating during the weekend, GM spokesmen issued a single brief statement: "We are totally unaware of any action of this kind."

Spokesmen refused further comment and executives were unavailable for comment.

But it should come as no surprise, one source said, because a company the size of GM is always under investigation and executives have said they are out to grab as many car sales as possible, despite GM's already larger piece of the market.

NBC reported Saturday the Federal Trade Commission is moving toward a decision whether to charge GM with antitrust violations.

Such a move would be the largest such action since the government broke up Standard Oil in 1911.

However, FTC spokesmen in Washington said no decisions have been made on the matter.

In an interview with UPI in September, GM President Elliott Estes said, "We're after everything that we can get."

"Even if we increase our share, we shouldn't be in any trouble in Washington," he said. "After all, there's still all that competition from the domestic and foreign automakers."

NBC said the FTC's Economics and Competitions bureaus contend GM's share of the market — more than half the cars built in the United States — is so large it is tantamount to a monopoly.

GM's sales last year amounted to $32 billion, second only to Exxon Corp., and its profits totaled $950 million, down 60 per cent from its record $2.4 billion profits the year before.

GM has been the subject of several antitrust actions in the past and Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich., chairman of the Senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee, has talked for years about breaking up GM.

In the past seven years GM has been consolidating its divisions to more central control in anticipation of possible antitrust action.

Comment Surprises Attorney

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst's jailer characterized her as a "cool customer" — to the distress of her attorney, who said the remark could jeopardize her right to a fair trial.

That comment, and a possible "surprise" by defense attorneys, threatened to disrupt her plea hearing today on federal bank robbery charges.

San Mateo County Sheriff John McDonald said Miss Hearst showed no emotion when attorney Albert Johnson telephoned Friday to tell her she had been found mentally competent to stand trial. McDonald said she was "a cool customer."

"I am incensed at the sheriff's characterization of my client," Johnson said Sunday.

McDonald, said Johnson, "has no business whatsoever in making that type of observation to the press. It can only further destroy the presumption of innocence."

"It could foreclose her right to a fair trial."

Miss Hearst was expected to plead innocent to the bank robbery charges in her appearance before U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter.

Miss Hearst was held without bail in San Mateo County Jail — of which McDonald is in charge — in nearby Redwood City.

Johnson also said he might come up with "a surprise" at the afternoon proceeding. He declined to elaborate, but sources indicated he and associate F. Lee Bailey would ask Carter for a trial delay — at least until spring.

Johnson and Bailey have said Miss Hearst's 19 months with the Symbionese Liberation Army has left her mind on the edge of a breakdown.

The 'Lulu' Battle

Assemblyman Andrew Stein of New York headed the state commission investigating nursing home operations and political tieups. He incurred the wrath of Assembly Speaker Stanley Steingut, who became a target of the nursing home investigation and who now has been indicted for allegedly trading political job promises for campaign contributions.

Stein has now issued an appeal to Steingut to oppose any appeal of the recent ruling by Albany Supreme Court Justice Edward Conway outlawing new and higher lulu payments to legislators, payments that Steingut arranged to have made in the first place.

Whether or not Steingut pays attention to Stein, and it's doubtful that he will, the public should support the call by Stein to ban the lulus. The ruling would apply to new stipends, paid to lawmakers who had never before received them, and to increased payments, larger sums to any individual than he had received in previous years. The law makes it illegal for any lawmaker to receive an increase in compensation during his term.

Stein, in issuing his appeal to the embattled Steingut, told the speaker that people shouldn't be asked to sacrifice what their leaders do not.

The Freeman backs Assemblyman Stein in his law. It is difficult to justify laying off police, firemen and teachers, and closing senior centers when legislators are being given all that lulu money.

State employees in the Civil Service Employees Assn. who received only a $250 one-time payment as the legislators were distributing more than $800,000 among themselves, brought suit to abolish the new and higher lulus.

The political response to the court decisions will be very interesting to observe. It may tell the public a lot about whether their elected officials are really concerned about curbing spending.

Support The LWV

The Mid-Ulster County League of Women Voters will be embarking on its annual finance drive later this month. The Freeman recommends support of this volunteer, non-profit and non-partisan organization.

The Mid-Hudson League was formed two years ago as a result of the merger of the LWV's of Kingston and Woodstock. The national organization has been in existence for over 50 years.

Members of the area league have completed studies on the revision of the County and City Charters, have published "Know Your Town" studies of Kingston and Woodstock and are currently studying the Towns of Hurley and Olive in preparation for publishing.

This organization has done outstanding service in giving news to the voters. Its sole support is through members' dues and by contributions from those who share its belief that good government can only come from an enlightened electorate.

WASHINGTON—A shockingly high percentage of hospitals, according to spot checks, don't meet the minimum federal standards.

The deficiencies range from inadequate fire protection and lax drug controls to unsanitary conditions and understaffing. Sloppy medical practices have also been discovered, such as the New York hospital which failed to take the proper precautions before transfusing blood.

These are the findings of the Health, Education and Welfare Department (HEW), which is supposed to police hospitals for the medicare program.

Spot investigations were conducted of 163 hospitals. An alarming 107 failed to measure up to the minimum standards.

In order to receive medicare money, hospitals must be accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH). This is composed of representatives from the nation's most prestigious professional medical groups.

Yet incredibly, the JCAH accredited all of the hospitals the HEW later disqualified. This has raised grave questions about the JCAH's own standards.

Most of the failing hospitals were disqualified because of safety deficiencies. The violations ranged from a shortage of exit signs to unacceptable fire protection equipment.

An HEW document, intended for official eyes only, charges that the JCAH accreditors missed the fire hazards because they "are not professionally qualified in the area of life safety."

Although JCAH conducted a thorough examination of each hospital's medical staff, the document adds the accreditors overlooked "deficiencies in the areas of nurse staffing, dispensation of drugs, preparation of patient diets and the review of the social needs of patients."

The federal investigators found, for example, that some doctors would simply phone in drug dosages without examining their patients. Some drug storage areas weren't properly policed.

Laundry was found in one hospital kitchen. In another hospital, the inspectors discovered that the suction device on respirators hadn't even been cleaned.

Understaffing was a problem in many hospitals, with unqualified aides sometimes doing work that doctors or nurses should perform. Tight budgets also caused skimping on food, resulting in poor dietary conditions.

The HEW survey covered only 2.2 per cent of the total number of accredited hospitals. But the hospitals were selected at random for investigation and appear to be typical. "The validation survey," concludes HEW, "would appear to indicate substantial inadequacies with respect to JCAH performance."

Spokesmen for JCAH claimed that HEW regulations establish different standards than those used for accreditation. The JCAH complained, therefore, that the HEW survey is "meaningless and distorted" and may cause "unnecessary apprehension and confusion for the public and hospitals."

The spokesmen also charged that many HEW regulations are no more than petty, unnecessary rules imposed upon hospitals by a giant bureaucracy. For the hospitals to conform to the HEW standards, JCAH said, would cost about $101 million for 84 of the hospitals cited.

These costs, which average about $1.2 million per institution, would have to be added to medical bills, the spokesmen alleged.

JCAH has taken steps meanwhile, to stop the disclosure of hospital survey information to the government. If this information becomes known to the patients, JCAH argued, hospitals might no longer be willing to cooperate with the surveys.

For our part, we believe the patients above all others have the right to know whether hospitals meet federal standards.

Footnote: House Investigations chairman John Moss, -Calif., is pressuring HEW to provide him with the JCAH surveys. SECRET INTELLIGENCE: The Central Intelligence Agency reports from Moscow that the Kremlin is preparing secret moves against China and Yugoslavia.

These are the two communist countries that have dared to defy the Soviet Union. They are led by two of Communism's elder statesmen—Mao Tse-tung, who will be 82 next month, and Marshal Tito, who is 83.

The Kremlin, therefore, is trying to stir up a political coup against both China and Yugoslavia when the two old titans pass away.

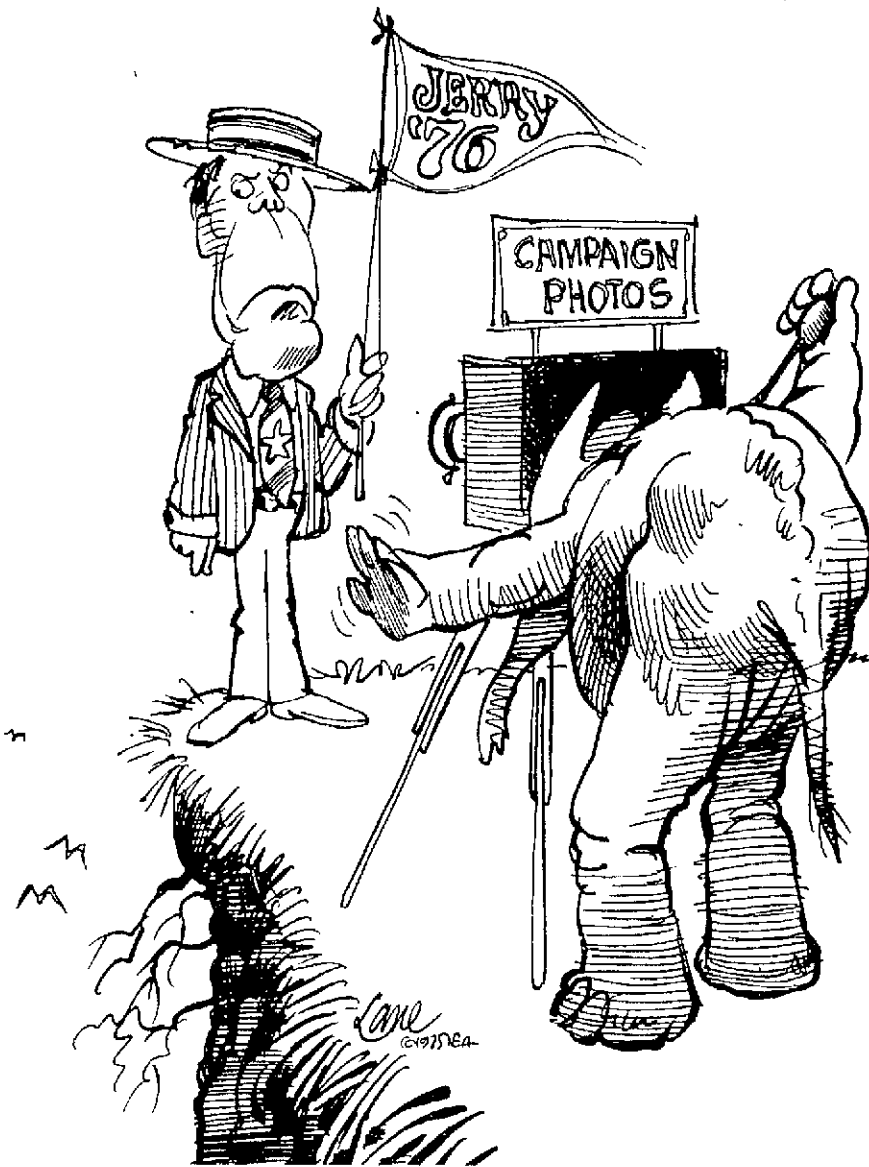

In China, Mao's two top lieutenants aren't much younger than he is. Premier Chou En-lai is 77 and hospitalized; Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping is 71.

According to the CIA, the Kremlin is plotting with younger leaders of the Chinese army who favor a reconciliation with Russia. The Kremlin hopes to install these pro-Soviet leaders in power when Mao dies.

In Yugoslavia, the situation is somewhat similar, except that the pro-Soviet leaders are old diehard Communists. The Soviets reportedly have made secret contacts, however, with some of the younger leaders.

The CIA has warned that the Kremlin will attempt to bring both China and Yugoslavia back into the Soviet bloc when Mao and Tito leave the scene. If the Kremlin is successful, this would upset the world power balance and tend to isolate the United States.

'...A Little Farther to Your Right...'

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON—The terminal disagreement over budget policy between Gerald R. Ford and James R. Schlesinger not only reflected underlying incompatibility but stripped bare some harsh realities about this President and his administration.

As Secretary of defense, Schlesinger simply refused to rubber-stamp deep military spending cuts essential to President Ford's political package of tax and budget reductions. That he should place his highly-informed view of national security above Mr. Ford's political imperatives was intolerable to the President.

But that was only the last straw. Equally intolerable were Schlesinger's prickly insistence on dissent, his semi-public airings of disagreements, his lack of congressional cloakroom good-ole-boy conviviality, his refusal to be a team player.

When repeatedly asked at Monday night's press conference why he had summarily fired perhaps the nation's best-qualified and best-performing Secretary of Defense, Mr. Ford refused his reasons. Thus, both the prelude and aftermath of Schlesinger's sacking suggest that the Ford White House, which advertises openness and candor, closely resembles the Nixon White House in abhorring dissent and diversity.

Schlesinger's ruffled appearance and superior professional tone displeased Mr. Ford even in his congressional days. But while the White House has been spreading the story that Schlesinger was doomed by poor congressional relations, the truth is that probably nobody in the Ford administration stands higher with Congress. Schlesinger's problem was not getting along with Congress but getting along with Jerry Ford.

Schlesinger's sardonic humor did not entrance the President. A high-level defense lobbyist, viewing Schlesinger as the best Defense Secretary he had seen in two decades, calls him "arrogant, abrasive, a cold fish." That Mr. Ford let the latter defects outweigh the former qualities may reflect the congressional mind's emphasis on congeniality.

But Mr. Ford might have tolerated Schlesinger's uncongeniality had he kept his views to himself. That the Secretary of Defense should suggest the President's detente policy—as structured by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger—was less than perfect was no more tolerable to Mr. Ford than it would have been to Richard M. Nixon.

Even last Saturday after the President decided to sack Schlesinger (but had not informed him), senior White House aides accused Schlesinger of leaking to the press disagreements with Kissinger over European defense deployments; in fact, he had leaked nothing and so informed the White House. But to the White House, Schlesinger was inviolable in publicly debating high policy better kept behind closed doors.

The final straw did not involve Schlesinger's serious objections to detente policy but, ironically, support for Gerald Ford's old congressional specialty: strong national preparedness.

Under constant attack from the Kremlin and American liberals for his insistence on adequate defense, Schlesinger was ill-prepared for the White House request that he slash $7 billion in defense as part of the President's $28 billion in defense as part of the President's $28 billion tax-budget reduction. Although this mirage-like package is an election-year gimmick which will never be enacted, Schlesinger feared voluntarily cutting back Pentagon spending would have long implications. So, he said, he would not do it.

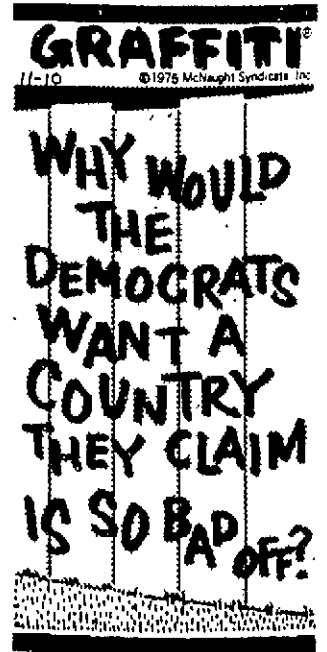

Schlesinger was outraged that budget director James Lynn wanted $7 billion cut from the defense budget for the next fiscal year below the level already set by Congress. To Schlesinger (an ex-budget Bureau official himself), Lynn is the most politically oriented budget director in memory and dedicated only to Mr. Ford's election. So, to appeal over his head, Schlesinger asked for an appointment with the President last Saturday.

If Lynn's Pentagon slash were approved, Schlesinger told the President that morning, he could not support it in Congress. Mr. Ford had already decided to fire him but gave no such indication to Schlesinger, who mistakenly thought he had convinced the President and departed from the White House in what an associate called "a buoyant mood."

If a defense expert with Dr. Schlesinger's credentials felt the cut endangers national security, why did the President neither dispute him nor accept his argument? Is the answer that Mr. Ford simply wanted to install faithful presidential aide Donald Rumsfeld as Secretary of Defense, guaranteeing no interference with election plans? That suspicion was heightened by the President at his press conference. Defending Rumsfeld's specific qualification to be Defense Secretary, Mr. Ford cited his experience as a "naval aviator."

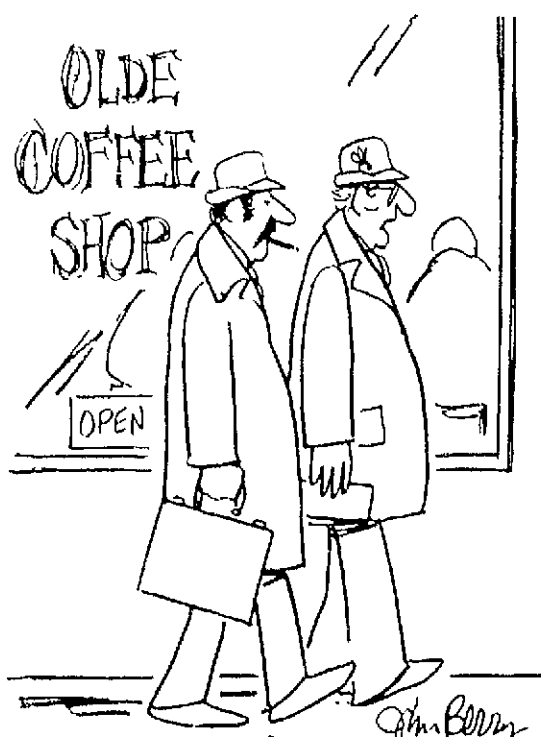

The President clearly was not interested in military or management qualifications but in the fact that Rumsfeld was one of "my guys." Schlesinger, whose combination of high intelligence and character is extraordinary in the Ford administration, never could meet that cloakroom standard.

Sharing The Annual Chuckles

When there is a spangle of frost on the lawn, and a walking man can see his breath, the Farmer's Almanac is at hand, it arrived in the mail—the 159th edition—and I have culled it for my annual chuckles:

"Bachelors, like detergents, work fast and leave no rings." "A neighbor is someone who advises you what to buy so he can borrow it later." "Bumper Sticker: Unemployment isn't working."

Ray Geiger of Lewiston, Maine, is the current editor of the Farmer's Almanac. Lewiston is the place where Rudy Vallee's father owned a drugstore. It is also the town where Sonny Liston knocked himself out trying to avoid Cassius Clay's flicking, kissable ring hand.

The Almanac predicts the weather a year ahead of time. Christmas, 1976, looks like this: "Clearing time. Light snow Wisconsin-Minnesota area eastward then, fair cold. Fair, cold plains states and west. Showers Texas, over southeast, then fair, cold."

BETTER TO LAUGH

"A sense of humor is what makes you laugh at something which would make you mad if it happened to you."

"Oh ye Fates, deliver me From following that nitwit lout, Who drives so nonchalantly With his left arm dangling out." I feel that astrology is astronomical hokum, so I looked up my wife's horoscope to prove it: It says: "Pisces—natural lovers, fickle, fruitful, easily led, honest, sensitive, cultured, fond of beauty in nature and art. Generous, pure of mind and trustworthy."

The defense rests . . . "Sing in a shop: If we don't have it you're better off without it. Sign on a cash register: To insure incorrect change please talk to the cashier. Sign on a tire truck: Invite us to your next blowout." One sign they didn't have appeared in the window of a small bank: Jesus Saves.

"A little boy came home from school. His mother asked him what he had learned. 'I learned that 4 plus 4 makes 9.' 'But that's wrong,' his mama said. 'In that case,' the little boy said, 'I didn't learn anything.'"

"Husband comes home carrying a big package. Wife: What did you buy? Husband: I don't know what it is. Wife: Then why did you buy it? Husband: The salesman said you can't get them anymore."

Legend on a cemetery tombstone: Anna Hopwell 1829-1848 Here lies the body Of young Anna Done to death By a banana It wasn't the fruit That laid her low But the skin of the thing That made her go.

Stephen Schlitzer wrote an ode to a model secretary:

She revises her boss's dictation, Correcting the phrases that faltered, She changes the tense without losing the sense, And he's never aware it's been altered, For she keeps just enough of his pet words To make certain her secret is hid, And he's dazzled and dazed and completely amazed At the wonderful job which he did.

STAMMERERS BEWARE

"Inflation is paying $5 for the $2 haircut you used to get for a dollar when you had hair." A hundred years ago, many persons believed that stammering could be cured by smacking the stammerer in the face with a piece of fresh liver.

"A teen-ager's apology to a friend: You'll have to excuse the way my room looks. My folks made me clean it up." "So I'm wearing a wig," the girl said to her boyfriend. "Do you have to tell everybody I'm going around under an assumed mane?"

The Almanac says that there are three things we can attain by giving them away—happiness, freedom and peace of mind. A philanthropist was asked how he could give away so much and still have so much left.

"Well," he said, "as I shovel out, God shovels in. He has a bigger shovel than I have."

Dutchess Police Investigating Robberies

By Matt Spireng

MILLERTON
A woman employee of a Millerton grocery was robbed of some $30,000 in cash and checks Saturday night as she was on her way to make a night deposit at a bank.

Dutchess County Sheriff Lawrence M. Quinlan said today that his department is investigating the possibility that the lone man known to have committed the Millerton robbery may have also been involved in a robbery at a Town of Poughkeepsie restaurant some six hours later.

Quinlan said a woman employee of the Millerton Supermarket was walking up the steps to the National Bank of Westchester Saturday night when a man wearing a ski mask and apparently carrying a gun told her to drop the money and leave.

The woman complied with the robber's demands and returned to the market, from which she called police.

The robber made off with $5,200 in cash and some $24,800 in checks, Quinlan said.

The only description the victim was able to provide police was that the rober was a white male about 5 feet 8 or 5 feet 9.

That description does not conform to one given of the suspect in a robbery at about 12:45 a.m. Sunday in the Town of Poughkeepsie, but Quinlan said authorities are checking the possibility of a connection between the two armed holdups, noting that descriptions given by victims often do vary.

Poughkeepsie Town Police released the following description of the suspect in the robbery at John L's, in which some $2,800 in cash was taken: white male, 6 feet 3, about 230 pounds.

Police said the robber, who also wore a ski mask, entered the restaurant through a rear door and confronted three employees with a long-barrelled lice said, and swerved to the right to avoid hitting it, but struck Victor Centeno, killing him.

Coroner William S. Keyser ruled the death accidental due to a broken neck.

Police explained that the Centeno vehicle had been involved in a minor one-car crash about a half hour earlier near Kingston while en route to Buffalo. The occupants decided to return to New York City, police said, and made a U-turn across the center mall. The car stopped further south and released at the hospital. Sabatino was taken from the scene by Doctor's Ambulance.

Greene Fatal

In the Greene County township of Prattsville, Michael Jaeger, 15, of Prattsville was killed Sunday morning when a tractor he was a passenger on overturned three times. The operator of the tractor, Gary Truesdell, 18, and another passenger, Thomas Johnson, 17, of Grand Gorge, were both taken to Greene County Memorial Hospital where they were listed in fair condition today.

Burned

Shawn Schick of 263 Albany Avenue was treated and released at Kingston Hospital late Saturday after sustaining burns while trying to extinguish a fire which broke out in a garage on Manor Place.

Firemen said a kerosene stove burst into flame in the garage while Schick was painting a van.

A sincere thank you to all the wonderful people in the City of Kingston for re-electing me to serve them for the next two years.

City Man Killed

Meanwhile, in other area police matters:

A young New York City man was killed over the weekend in a bizarre crash on the Thruway about 5 miles north of the New Paltz interchange.

State Police said a car operated by Santos Centeno, 28, of Patterson, N.J., had stopped in the driving lane at about 5 a.m. A passenger in the car, Victor Centeno, 30, also of Patterson, got out of the right side of the car. A car operated by Robert Owin, 28, of Main Street, Lake Katrine, came upon the stopped vehicle, poin order for the occupants to feed some infants in the vehicle, troopers said.

Santos Centeno was issued tickets for stopping on the pavement and making an illegal U-turn.

Fair Condition

Mark Sabatino, 18, of Ulster Park, was listed in fair condition today at Benedictine Hospital, suffering from injuries sustained late Saturday when the car he was driving collided with the rear of a parked vehicle on Washington Avenue in Kingston.

Sabatino was ticketed for driving while intoxicated and speed not reasonable or prudent by Kingston Police.

Two persons who were in the parked vehicle were treated

Bar Association Pleased With Plan

KINGSTON
The Ulster County Bar Association in a recent letter to Legislator Robert H. Kuhlmann, chairman of the legislature's county buildings committee, commended the legislature for its work in preparation for the remodeling of the County Court House and also for preserving and protecting the historical heritage of the edifice.

The letter by Richard W. Griggs, chairman of the association's court remodeling committee states:

"As chairman of this association's court house remodeling committee, I am writing to thank you and your committee members for allowing us to submit recommendations over the past 18 months concerning the modernization of our Court House.

"I know personally of the great amount of time you and your committee have spent on this project and the various committee reports filed with the county legislature as study and preliminary plans progressed.

"The Ulster County Bar Association deeply appreciates being given the opportunity to assist your committee and the county legislature in taking these steps necessary to preserve and protect the great historical heritage of our court house, and to also make sure that the facility be updated and modernized so that it can truly serve the needs of all our citizens.

"What greater gift can the residents of Ulster County bestow upon themselves in our nation's bicentennial year than to show that historically rich public buildings can retain that heritage while at the same time be functionally in step with the needs of our county today?

"Please accept our thanks and pledge to continue to assist your committee in every possible way in this important undertaking.

"In closing, will you please express our thanks to Legislator Chairman Peter Savago for the keen interest shown by his involvement in this project."

Fruit Growers Survey

ALBANY
Tree fruit and grape growers in New York will be surveyed this month and December for an up to date inventory of fruit trees and grapes by age and variety.

The survey will be conducted by the New York Crop Reporting Service with funds provided by the Department of Agriculture and Markets.

It is expected the survey will reveal significant changes in fruit plantings in the five years since the previous canvass was completed in 1970.

Glen Suter, statistician in charge of the New York Crop Reporting Service, emphasized that this work is in response to fruit industry requests to keep abreast of changes in the fruit tree and grape vine population in the state. Growers, marketing organizations, Extension Service advisors and a host of others make use of the basic information these surveys provide.

Questionnaires are to be mailed to growers in this month. Interviewers will follow up in early December by contacting those who do not respond by mail. Results will be published by next spring.

Every grower is urged to cooperate fully for the benefit of all of New York's $126 million fruit industry. It is expected over 3,000 fruit growers will be contacted. Prompt mail responses will lower survey costs by reducing the need for personal contact to obtain the information.

Annual Survey Shows Tourism Business Was Better

KINGSTON
A tourism survey at the end of the summer season conducted by the Ulster County Public Relations and Resort Information Office indicates a "good" summer season with more than 60 per cent of the respondents claiming "business better than last year."

According to Al Cawein, public relations director, this also correlates with a corresponding increase in the county sales tax, which shows an increase during that period of $148,479 over the same period last year.

A report of the sales tax receipts from the County Treasurer's

WHITA Reviews Senate House Roof

KINGSTON
The regular monthly meeting of the WHITA (We've Had It Taxpayers Association) Board of Directors held recently at the Heritage Savings Bank, featured a report on an investigation into the Senate House roof and air conditioning systems.

WHITA found that the planned costs of installation and annual maintenance will be extraordinary and expensive. The proposed cost of $150,000 for air conditioning with a annual maintenance cost of $15,000, was deemed very costly and a deliberate waste of public money by the WHITA report.

WHITA reviewed the results of the referendum regarding the defeat of the $1,000,000 bond issue for the City Hall restoration and complimented the taxpayers for rejecting a scheme, which they consider a fraud.

WHITA reaffirmed its support in the saving of the City Hall as a National Historic landmark and urged Mayor Francis R. Koenig to take the leadership in bringing about a "sensible" plan to restore the building to public use without spending "huge and unnecessary funds." WHITA is mindful of the $500,000 state funds available for matching by the City of Kingston and believes that an economical solution which would be fair to the public can be achieved, according to Secretary Mary E. McKie.

Office shows $3,717,109 for the period ending Sept. 30 as compared with $3,567,630 reported for the same period of 1974, the PR director revealed.

The annual tourism survey, a double post card inquiry, was sent to 208 resorts, camp grounds and other county attractions. A total of 67 responded with 28 reporting "business better than last year" and 34 indicating "business about the same." Only 12, mostly the bungalow colony in Ellenville area reported "business worse than last year."

Many of the respondents reported an "influx of new customers" and a good majority said some customers came to Ulster County encouraged by county ads and promotions conducted by the Public Relations and Resort Information Office, Cawein said.

There were indications early in the spring that "good business" could be expected during the summer due to the thousands of responses to vacation and fishing ads published in metropolitan New York newspapers and national magazines, said Cawein.

The trend of additional tourism business appears to be carrying through the hunting season as requests for hunting information is rapidly approaching the 2,000 mark, Cawein concluded.

Fish Against UN Vote

WASHINGTON, D.C. (R-25th Dist.) has sponsored a house resolution strongly condemning the recent vote by the United Nations Special Committee declaring Zionism a form of racism and racial discrimination.

"This insult to the State of Israel and the Jewish people by the Arab and Communist bloc who supported this declaration is in essence an official endorsement by the UN of worldwide anti-Semitism," Fish declared.

Fish pointed out that the nations supporting this UN resolution represent totalitarian nations where civil liberties do not exist.

"It is amazing that Israel, which permits full and equal rights to all its citizens is being branded a racist state by countries such as Saudi Arabia, where non-Muslims are not permitted to be citizens," Fish stated.

"The time has come for the United States to re-evaluate its position in the UN, and put this world body on notice declaring that this continued irresponsible action will not be tolerated by this nation, I am happy to see that our ambassador to the United Nations, Daniel P. Moynihan, has taken a strong stand in the UN," Fish said.

According to Fish, there is a growing movement in the congress for a total re-assessment of this country's policy toward the United Nations. "This is a result of not only the most recent action by the UN, but also due to the growing number of attacks on the U.S. by nations who use the United Nations as a rostrum for their denunciations of this country," Fish concluded.

Meeting on Dairy Promotions to Be Held

CIRCLEVILLE
Dairy princess and county milk promotion committee members from Orange, Ulster, and Dutchess counties will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 18, at the Circleville Inn, in Circleville.

The session is one in a series of regional meetings being coordinated statewide by American Dairy Association & Dairy

Times Strike Target

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Times has been selected as the strike target if talks between the New York Newspaper Guild, the Times and the New York Daily News do not produce a contract by Tuesday morning.

Negotiations were scheduled today with mediator Theodore Kheel in attendance. A spokesman said the meetings probably would continue into the night in hopes of beating the strike deadline.

The Guild, which represents editorial, advertising, clerical and miscellaneous employees at the two papers, has demanded salary hikes, cost-of-living raises, better pension and health benefits and other contract improvements including job and union security.

Council of New York (ADA & DCNY) which sponsors the Dairy Princess Program and works with county milk promotion committees to provide information on milk and dairying to consumers.

Topics at the local meeting will include plans for the 1976 dairy princess selection, June Dairy Month, supermarket and elementary school programs on dairying, among others.

Donna Yousey, coordinator of the dairy princess and county promotion committee programs for ADA & DCNY who will speak at the local meeting, explains that most of the local county programs were started in the 1950s and early 1960s when dairy farmers became concerned about the lack of information reaching children and adults about milk and dairy products and increasing popularity of soft drinks.

"Dairy farmers have been called the last of the rugged individualists but one thing all dairy farmers share is pride in their product," she says. "Our current information programs are really an outgrowth of farmers' pride in milk — often called nature's most nearly perfect food."

Gypsy cast in rehearsal for New Paltz productions includes Barbara Hardgrave, Keith Overton, Gary Prionti and Larry Yando.

'Gypsy' Headed for New Paltz

NEW PALTZ GYPSY, that award-winning musical fable about the life and times of Gypsy Rose Lee, is coming to New Paltz.

The Department of Theatre Arts at SUC, New Paltz, will stage this popular Broadway hit at eight performances — beginning Friday night, November 14.

Other evening performances, all beginning at 8:30 o'clock, are scheduled for Nov. 15, 19, 20, 21 and 22. The other two performances will be Matinees at 2 o'clock on November 16 and 23.

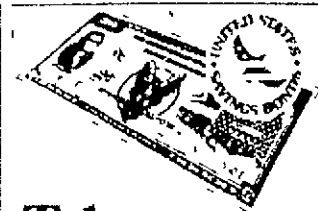

GYPSY, the elaborate and splashy musical extravaganza with a cast of nearly a hundred, will be a joint project of the Theatre and Music Departments. The orchestra will be conducted by Lee Pritchard and the central role of Madame Rose will be portrayed by Miss Barbara Hardgrave of the music department.

The Arthur Laurents play is based on the memoirs of the famous stripper, Gypsy Rose Lee and the major figure is her mother Madame Rose, who dominates the lives of her children and lives her own dreams through them. After years of struggle on the vaudeville circuit, daughter Louise reaches stardom as the burlesque queen Gypsy Rose Lee and Madame Rose (now in the background) is left to ponder "Why did I do it? What did it get me?"

Ticket reservations may be made by calling the McKenna Theatre at the university.

Kingston Couples Exchange Nuptial Vows

Ancient Sage To Woodstock

WOODSTOCK

An ancient sage who is no stranger to Woodstock and area residents, is returning.

Guru Bawa, following a stay in Ceylon for a year, is back in the United States and will appear Saturday afternoon, Nov. 15, at 4 o'clock at the Woodstock Guild of Craftsmen Hall, to speak on God.

There will be no fee for Bawa's appearance and message and a large attendance is anticipated.

Guru Bawa was in Woodstock on four occasions in 1973-74 and many Woodstockers followed him to Philadelphia, Pa., where he has a large fellowship.

Bawa, who since his return from India, has visited in Iowa and California, is the author of numerous books, including "Truth & Light," brief explanations of God's grace.

Bawa claims he is really only an "ant man," who knows nothing, but does his duty in the guru act. Bawa focuses totally on the inner heartfelt experience of God, without the need of church, prayer, chanting, yoga, rituals, incense or candles.

Like Jesus, it is said, Bawa teaches that the main thing is to become like God by trying to acquire God's qualities. All are welcome to the Nov. 15 program.

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column that wives who have been deserted by their husbands and who have had to go on welfare to support their families should write to the Parent Locator Service, in care of the Health, Education and Welfare Office in Washington, D.C.

You said that department would locate the absent parents through Social Security records, and they would inform the wife of her husband's whereabouts. (In the past, such information was considered confidential, and the department refused to give it out.)

Well, I followed your advice, and the HEW wrote back saying they were sorry but they couldn't help me. How come?

Thanks for nothing.

DESERTED IN TEXAS

DEAR DESERTED: Last August, a spokesman for the HEW wrote to advise me that the whereabouts of an absent spouse would no longer be confidential if he deserted his family and failed to meet his financial obligations. I was advised to inform my readers to write to the HEW in Washington, D.C., for assistance in locating absent spouses.

After that item appeared in my column, the HEW in Washington, D.C., was inundated with requests for help. All were refused.

When I demanded an explanation, they apologetically told me that such a bill had been passed, but that Congress had filed to appropriate the funds to provide that service—and then asked that I please inform deserted wives to apply to their state welfare departments for assistance in locating an absent spouse.

DEAR ABBY: I've never seen this problem in your column, and I really would like to know if there is a solution:

When a person drives her (or his) own car and agrees to pick up others, why should the driver have to pay for the parking?

I think it's enough that the driver uses her (his) car and pays for the gas without having to pay for the parking.

Of all the times I've been the "chauffeur," not once has one of the "shlep-palongs" offered to pay for even part of the parking.

Please print this, Abby. Most people aren't really cheap; they're just thoughtless.

"THE DRIVER"

DEAR DRIVER: Here's your letter. Are you listening "Shlep-palongs"?

DEAR ABBY: I can't forget the letter from OLD FOOL, the 64-year-old woman who considers herself "respectable" but who is having an affair with a married man whose wife is now her "best friend."

You should have reminded her of the Chinese proverb, "One foot cannot stand on two boats."

As discreet or cunning as her married lover may be, he is bound to fall in the drink sooner or later, and he's the one who has something to lose not she.

He is making a mockery of marriage, and she is making a mockery of friendship, pretending to be best friends with her lover's wife. Meanwhile, OLD FOOL is secure in her retirement with family and friends, and her travels around kill time.

I hope this married man's wife is still around to care for him if he develops a lingering illness. OLD FOOL will probably be cruising in the Mediterranean. Alone.

STRONG STOMACH

DEAR STRONG: Could be. But another reader takes an opposing view. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: To the woman who calls herself OLD FOOL: There are countless numbers of people doing the same thing. You had the courage to write. Bless you!

LUNCHEON & DINNERS SERVED DAILY

Indiana Turkey Expert

FERDINAND, Ind. (UPI) — Allene Lang, wife of a leading turkey grower in this southern Indiana community, feeds her family turkey once or twice a week all year. So you might expect her to cook ham for Thanksgiving instead.

"With the price of ham? Never!" says this 42-year-old mother of five.

Mrs. Lang said they usually have 20,000 to 30,000 turkeys on range or in houses.

"We eat turkey year round, and we definitely have turkey on Thanksgiving," she said. "But we eat it once or twice a week (all year)."

The Lang children, three boys and two girls, range from a 22-year-old married daughter to a 2-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Lang said she keeps 15 or 20 birds in the freezer.

"She said she generally has them butchered, halved and frozen, so she can prepare them in a variety of ways. For Thanksgiving, however, she has a whole roast bird or two."

There is hardly any waste to a turkey, Mrs. Lang said. She uses it in salads, soups, roasted whole; smoked and sometimes garnished, like ham, with pineapple.

"We're all big meat eaters, but we don't get tired of turkey," she said. "We'll eat half a turkey at a meal."

"I like to skin it, slice the meat off and have it browned and fried. It tastes like pork then."

She said she prefers hens for roasting and toms cut up, but has roasted toms occasionally, too.

Mrs. Lang said her early attempts at cooking turkey were not notable successes with her family.

"At first I murdered turkey. We would have it, and nobody would like it. But I got different recipes, and I experimented myself, and it isn't that hard."

"It was too dry. I was just baking it with a little water, and I'd put one stick of celery in where now I put three or four sticks."

She said she uses more water, bakes the bird slowly and slices the meat from the bones.

Then she puts the bones in broth and the skin over the sliced meat like a blanket to protect it against drying while she keeps it warm in a low temperature oven.

Memoriam For The Dirigibles

LAKEHURST, N.J. (UPI) — Retired Adm. Charles E. Rosendahl, who commanded the naval air station here when the German dirigible Hindenburg burst into flames and claimed 32 lives 40 years ago, plans to build a museum dedicated to the history of airships.

Rosendahl said he is awaiting congressional approval for the use of a 13-acre tract of land on the sprawling base for the museum, which he called "the first of its kind in the country."

The admiral, now in his 80s, his voice as steady and strong as when he gave a stream of rescue orders after the Hindenburg exploded while preparing to land on May 6, 1937, has another idea — the rejuvenation of airships in modern aviation.

Rosendahl, himself a survivor of the crash of the navy airship "Shenandoah" in Ohio in 1922, said the New Jersey congressional delegation is pushing for the plan and that a bill seeking approval for the use of the base has been introduced in congress.

"The whole New Jersey delegation is supporting the bill and they don't anticipate objections," said Rosendahl, who has established an Airship Association to raise funds for the museum. But he said it will be "a matter of several months" before Congress approves the project.

Rosendahl said about 1,000 aviation buffs will contribute parts of airships, photographs, files and documents for the museum.

The admiral hopes the museum itself will be a step toward achieving his other idea. He says exhibition of the memorabilia he plans to gather should help dispel myths and what he calls negative feelings about airships.

Rosendahl, whose involvement in the Navy's lighter-than-air fleet dates back to the 1920s, has some strong arguments to make in support of pulling airships out of the pages of history into contemporary use.

Despite the crashes of the Hindenburg and several U.S. airships, Rosendahl said, "The project to develop airships should have been kept alive. It did not have the chance to develop to its full capacity."

Nobel Prize Is a Problem for Kremlin

MOSCOW (UPI) — There are increasing signs the Kremlin will refuse permission for dissident physicist Andrei D. Sakharov to leave the Soviet Union to receive the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize.

Authorities may withhold an exit visa on security grounds, citing Sakharov's key role in the development of the Soviet hydrogen bomb during the 1950s.

The 54-year-old scientist became the first Soviet citizen to win the peace award Oct. 9, with the Norwegian sponsors hailing his "personal and fearless effort in the cause of peace" through his campaign on behalf of human rights.

The controlled Soviet press quickly accused Sakharov of being an advocate of "anti-Sovietism" and an outspoken opponent of relaxation of international tensions.

Sakharov appeared unmoved by the criticism and formally asked for a visa to attend the official award ceremonies in Oslo, Norway, Dec. 10.

The clearest sign yet of Kremlin intent toward the retiring physicist emerged in a recent article by Russian journalist Victor Louis.

Louis' opinions are widely regarded as having the weight of the Kremlin behind them. "The question now is whether Dr. Sakharov, a nuclear scientist, will be allowed to receive his prize," Louis wrote. "Most likely he will not, and not only because his activity (in Moscow) meets with disapproval," he said.

"Dr. Sakharov, as a top-ranking scientist, is a bearer of national secrets and although a period of three to five years is considered long enough for the knowledge of a factory worker to grow stale, it is hard to set a limit to the knowledge held by a man such as Dr. Sakharov."

Louis said Sakharov outside the Soviet Union would "become the prey not only of journalists, but of military powers as well."

Sakharov has not played an active role in the Soviet nuclear program since early 1967 — nearly a nine-year hiatus. The broadly worded Soviet law on the subject gives authorities the right to refuse visa permission on security grounds indefinitely.

The decision in the Sakharov case poses a dilemma for the Kremlin because many people in the West will see it as a major test of Soviet willingness to observe the humanitarian provisions of the Final Act of the European Security Conference signed this summer in Helsinki.

Sakharov's request falls into a category of the pact called "travel for personal or professional reasons."

The agreement is likely to provide little help since the Soviets have adopted a literal interpretation of the act, and the section in question calls only for "gradual" improvement of travel conditions.

A further sign that authorities will refuse Sakharov's visa request came in an attack by 70 members of the prestigious Academy of Sciences.

"This tells the world that Sakharov will not be able to recruit a large body of public opinion within the Soviet Union to get him out of the country and back again," a Western diplomat commented.

One factor that sharpens the dilemma facing the Kremlin is the knowledge that another Soviet scientist, Leonid V. Kantorovich, has been awarded the Nobel Prize in Economics.

Kantorovich was recently treated favorably in an interview with the newspaper Literaturnaya Gazeta.

The two awards pose the potentially embarrassing problem for the Soviets of finding justification for refusing permission for Sakharov, while allowing Kantorovich to attend the ceremonies in Stockholm Dec. 10.

Significantly, Kantorovich's name was missing from the list of scientists who denounced Sakharov.

Schupp Speaks Out Against Hatch Act

KINGSTON

The leader of the American Postal Workers Union here said today that "the continuing denial of political rights to federal employees makes a mockery of America's free heritage on the very eve of our centennial."

Leo A. Schupp, president of the Kingston local of the AFL-CIO union, which represents 300,000 "inside" postal workers across the nation, had harsh words for both politicians and editorial pundits who oppose pending revision of the Hatch Act.

He called them "apostles of fear, chained by myths of the past, who are scared to let their own public servants take part in the politics of our times."

"For more than 30 years," Schupp added, "federal employees have been victimized by the 'Upstairs Downstairs' syndrome that only our masters should have the privilege of participating in politics. Thank God, the U.S. House of Representatives has finally rejected that myth—and for this we federal employees are grateful to our local congressmen for their support."

(The House passed the Clay "Political Rights" bill (HR 8617) by a vote of 288 to 119 on Oct. 21.)

Schupp spoke out, he said, because "some politicians and editorial pundits across the country are orchestrating editorial support for leaving the Hatch Act intact."

"They have forgotten, if they ever knew it," he added, "that the Hatch Act is a monument to the vengeance of those who hated the influence of Franklin D. Roosevelt and that it was adopted without public hearings and almost no debate. It has done nothing but debase the American political process by providing a handy bolt-hole in which a few craven souls can hide while defaulting on their obligations as citizens."

Schupp continued, "Those who want to keep us out of the political mainstream, who want us to remain in second class citizen status, overlook the fact that the revisions of HR 8617 contain more safeguards against abuse than the Hatch Act itself."

"It prohibits the use of federal funds to influence our vote, the misuse of official authority to coerce us, the solicitation of contributions by our superiors, or even the making of voluntary contributions in federal buildings."

It authorizes leave without pay for those of us who wish to run for political office and establishes an independent board to adjudicate violations of the revised act while subjecting violators to the law to removal, suspension or other penalties."

"In short it updates and modifies the Hatch Act to permit voluntary participation in political activities while guarding against compromising the integrity of the merit system."

Schupp urged "our citizens and our senators not to be persuaded by the fear-mongers who would reserve political action only for the kind of elite who have done such a great job in wrecking the economy of the United States."

Seniors Date Shifted

Mid-Ulster League Begins Annual Fund Drive

KINGSTON

Mrs. Dorothy Vilches, president of the League of Women Voters (LWV) of Mid-Ulster County, and Mrs. Luisa Ganter, finance chairwoman, have announced that the league is embarking on its annual finance drive this month.

This particular league was formed two years ago as a result of the merger of the LWV's of Kingston and Woodstock. As a national organization, the LWV celebrated its golden anniversary a few years ago.

Mrs. Vilches pointed out that the LWV is a volunteer, non-profit, non-partisan organization whose purpose is to promote informed citizen participation in government on all levels. It is strictly independent of political affiliation, supporting issues, never candidates. The positions on issuess are the result of an extensive study of the pros and cons and are rational decisions backed by facts, she said.

Local Leagues throughout the country study issues and form the consensus upon which the national and state leagues base their positions. The LWV is a truly democratic organization where every member's voice counts; The opportunities for study and service are almost unlimited, she said.

"In the Mid-Ulster County League," Mrs. Vilches said, "we now have studies in progress ranging from the UN on a national level, the state legislature on a state level, and on a local level have studied the county charter and the charter revision for the City of Kingston. We have completed and published 'Know your Town' studies of Kingston and Woodstock and are currently studying the towns of Hurley and Olive in preparation for publishing."

Mrs. Ganter pointed out that the league is supported by members' dues and by contributions from those who share the League's belief that good government can come only from an enlightened electorate. The League of Women Voters of Mid-Ulster County seeks financial support for its work and, at the same time, invites any interested persons to membership in the League. Contributions may be sent to the LWV of Mid-Ulster County, P.O. Box 564, UPO, Kingston. Membership or other information about the LWV may be obtained from the same address.

Young Oilers Learned Lesson

BY JOE CARNICELLI
UPI Sports Writer

Maybe Bum Phillips should tell his young Houston Oilers not to hit so hard. The Oilers, who had allowed the fewest points in the league before Sunday, went into the game with Pittsburgh as part of a three-way tie for first in the AFC Central Division with the Steelers and Cincinnati.

After spotting the Super Bowl champion Steelers a 17-7 lead, the Oilers came roaring back to tie the game at 17-17 with 2:38 left to play. Then the young Houston defense got a little impetuous.

They racked up wide receiver Frank Lewis and Steeler Coach Chuck Noll was forced to replace him with John Stallworth, who had missed the last three games and had been on the bench all day Sunday with an injury. Four plays later, Stallworth put a brilliant move on cornerback Zeke Moore and caught a 21-yard touchdown pass from Terry Bradshaw with 38 seconds left to lift Pittsburgh to a 24-17 victory.

It was Pittsburgh's seventh victory in eight games and left the Steelers tied with Cincinnati, which edged Denver 17-16, for first. Houston fell to 6-2.

"Frank Lewis went down four plays before that and that's the only reason I went in," said Stallworth, a second-year man from Alabama A&M. "I feel that I could have been playing before this and even though I caught that touchdown, I still feel bad because I don't feel I'm contributing to the team like I should be."

Moore, naturally, was disappointed.

"Bradshaw was scrambling a lot and that made it difficult to cover the receivers," he explained. "I got beat—it can happen to anyone. I was playing an inside coverage and taking away the post pattern. He ran me so far inside and took such a good break to the flag that I couldn't get back into the play. He has super moves and runs under control."

A key interference penalty against cornerback Mel Blount set up Willis' one-yard plunge to tie the score after Bradshaw threw eight-yard touchdown passes to Lynn Swann and Larry Brown to build a Steeler lead. Blount was steaming about the call.

"That was a bad call and it was a turning point," he said. "I told the referee it should have been offensive interference. I didn't make contact with him—he made it with me, and when I got up, I thought they had called it on him."

In other NFL action Sunday, San Francisco upset Los Angeles 24-23. Baltimore stunned Buffalo 42-35, Washington downed the New York Giants 21-13. St. Louis edged Philadelphia 24-23, Miami whipped the New York Jets 27-7, Minnesota routed Atlanta 38-0, Oakland blasted New Orleans 48-10, Detroit downed Cleveland 21-10, Chicago dumped Green Bay 27-14 and New England clubbed San Diego 33-19. Kansas City is at Dallas tonight.

Bengals 17, Broncos 16
Cincinnati, down 13-7 at the half, pulled ahead in the third period on Dave Green's 45-yard field goal and Boobie Clark's one-yard plunge to beat Denver. Ed Williams also had a one-yard TD for the Bengals while Denver's Floyd Little scored on a one-yard run and Steve Ramsey threw a 10-yard TD pass to Riley Odoms.

49ers 24, Rams 23

Rookie Steve Mike-Mayer boomed a 54-yard field goal with 38 seconds left to lift San Francisco over Los Angeles, the 49ers' first win over the Rams after 10 straight losses. Mike-Mayer's winning kick came after the Rams scored with 90 seconds left and Tom Dempsey missed the extra point. Steve Spurrier threw for three TDs and 290 yards for the 49ers.

Colts 42, Bills 35

Bert Jones threw two TD passes and ran for a third and Lydell Mitchell had three TDs as Baltimore downed Buffalo. Jones passed for 306 yards, including an 89-yard TD pass to Roger Carr. The Bills' O.J. Simpson scored three touchdowns and ran for 123 yards. Mitchell gained 112.

Cardinals 24, Eagles 23

Jim Bakken's 30-yard field goal with three seconds left boosted St. Louis over Philadelphia and helped the Cards remain tied for the NFC East lead with Washington at 6-2. Roman Gabriel's two TD passes helped the Eagles build a 23-7 lead before St. Louis stormed back on TD runs of one-yard by Terry Metcalf and five by Jim Hart before Bakken's kick.

Vikings 38, Falcons 0

Chuck Foreman scored three TDs to boost his league leading total to 11 and Fran Tarkenton had a scoring pass to move within nine of John Unites' all-time record as Minnesota swamped Atlanta. The Vikings forced eight turnovers, including Jim Marshall's NFL record 26th career fumble recovery.

Raiders 48, Saints 10

Ken Stabler threw for 232 yards, including TD passes of 36 and 48 yards to Morris Bradshaw, to lead Oakland's romp past New Orleans. Clarence Davis also ran for two scores as the Raiders built a 21-3 halftime lead and blew open the game with a 20-point third quarter.

Lions 21, Browns 10

Joe Reed threw a 21-yard TD pass to Ray Jarvis and Ben Davis returned an interception 67 yards for a score as Detroit sent winless Cleveland to its eighth loss. Third-string quarterback Will Cureton passed 12 yards to Oscar Roan for the Browns' lone TD.

Bears 27, Packers 14

Craig Clemons' 76-yard interception return sparked Chicago over Green Bay and snapped a five-game Bears' losing streak. Walter Payton ran five yards for one score and Gary Huff threw 12 yards to Bob Parsons for another Bears TD. Reserve quarterbacks Don Milan and Carlos Brown each had a TD pass for the Packers.

Patriots 33, Chargers 17

Steve Grogan threw for 245 yards and a touchdown as New England sent winless San Diego to its eighth loss. John Smith of the Patriots and the Chargers' Randy Wersching each kicked four field goals to tie the NFL record of eight in a single game. Bob Howard had a 44-yard interception return for a Patriots TD.

Sacking the Quarterback

Steeler quarterback Terry Bradshaw (12) is sacked by Oilers curly Culp (L) and Elvin Bethea (65) for a nine yard loss in the fourth quarter Sunday in Pittsburgh. Steelers' Mike Webster (52) attempts to block. Pittsburgh won, 24-17. (UPI)

Jets Hurting and Mercury Is Fuming

MIAMI (UPI) — The New York Jets continued their tailspin with a 27-7 loss to the Miami Dolphins Sunday and nobody, not even Joe Namath, seems to have a solution to the problem.

The Jets, now 2-6, would have to stage another late season charge to reach respectability — and would need to win five of their remaining six games just to equal last year's 7-7 output when they won their last six outings.

Meanwhile, the Dolphins seem to be having their own problems despite a seven-game winning streak following their season-opening loss to Oakland. Running back Mercury Morris announced that he wants to be traded after the season because he's not being used enough.

Namath seemed to be at a loss about the cause of the Jets' problems.

"I don't see anybody quitting out there — everybody seems to be trying, everybody has pride in what they're doing," he said. "If any of us knew what causes the breakdowns, we would fix it. But we don't know what it is."

The Jets battled to a 7-7 tie midway in the third quarter, but then Miami put it away with a 59-yard touchdown pass from Bob Griese to Norm Bulaich and a 50-yard punt return by Freddie Solomon. The two long scores came within 2:06 of each other.

Meanwhile, the Dolphin defense shut out Namath and the Jets in the second half.

"The running game was going good in the first half, but then they started shutting it down," Namath explained. "When they started doing that, we were facing second and third-and-long."

Morris, who went in the game trailing only Buffalo's O.J. Simpson among AFC rushers, was given the ball just four times and gained nine yards.

The workhorse was Benny Malone, playing only his second game of the year because of a pulled hamstring muscle. Malone carried 13 times for 60 yards and an eight-yard touchdown.

"I don't object to either player being upset at his not playing, but I'll do the best I can," Shula said.

On the game that put the Dolphins two games ahead of Buffalo in the AFC East, Shula said he was "pretty happy" with the entire performance.

"The defense shut out the Jets in the second half and the offense came up with some big plays," he said.

On the first of the two game breakers, Griese scrambled away from two Jet rushers and when he came free he spotted Bulaich all alone on the sidelines.

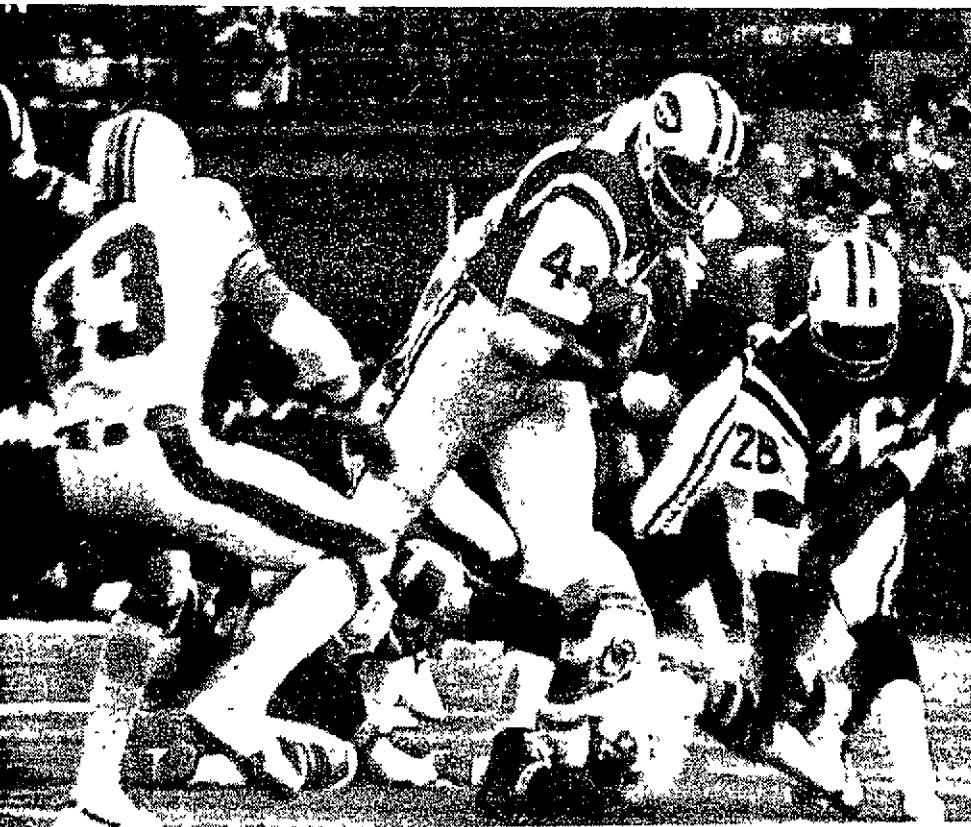

"That was their only real breakdown of the day," Griese said. "They were in a zone and the guy responsible for the deep outside didn't stay deep outside."

"When I saw him scrambling, I broke it down the field and got behind the defender,"

Bulaich said. "I was hoping Bob didn't forget about me." The other big play, Solomon's 50-yard return, looked risky at first as he took the ball on the run with a defender within reach.

"I had to reach for the ball because I felt someone close to me," explained the rookie wide receiver. "But I've conditioned myself not to be concerned with how close they are to me."

"I felt someone brush me but I took off," Solomon said. The Jets had taken a 7-0 first quarter led with a 15-yard pass from Namath to Carl Garrett, but Miami evened it up just before halftime with Malone's eight-yard run up the middle.

Riggins on the Run

New York Jets' John Riggins (44) catches Miami's Jake Scott (13) with his legs crossed and makes a gamble pay off on a fourth down running play in the first quarter Sunday at the Orange Bowl. The 21 yard gain set up Jets' only touchdown in 27-7 loss. (UPI)

Those Colts Just Forgot About O. J. Simpson

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — The Baltimore Colts decided to forget about O.J. Simpson.

The Colts, who may have been overly concerned with Simpson during the first half of their game Sunday against the Buffalo Bills, came out concentrating on football in the final 30 minutes and walked off with a 42-35 victory over the defenseless Bills.

"Maybe we were too concerned about stopping O.J. in the first half," said Colts Coach Ted Marchbroda, "and we just went out there and played football in the second half."

Simpson ran wild in the first half, scoring three touchdowns on a 44-yard run and two pass plays of 22 and 32 yards. He had 105 yards rushing in the half.

The Colts countered with a nine-yard scoring pass from Bert Jones to Lydell Mitchell but the Bills had a 28-7 lead in the second quarter when Joe Ferguson connected with Bob Chandler on a nine-yard touchdown pass.

With 2:28 left in the half, Baltimore kicker Tony Linhart lined up for a 32-yard field goal. Holder Marty Domres, the backup quarterback, threw a 15-yard touchdown pass off the fake play to Bill Olds to make it 28-14.

The Colts held off the Bills on the next drive and Jones unloaded an 89-yard TD bomb to Roger Carr with little more than a minute left in the half.

"I hadn't done anything all season," Domres said. "It was nice to be able to contribute, especially to get the big play like that."

The Colts tied the game on Mitchell's 11-yard scoring run early in the fourth quarter and went ahead when Jones ran 19 yards for a touchdown, which was set up by a Stan White interception of a Ferguson pass.

Baltimore iced it with 3:10 to go when Mitchell scored on a 12-yard run. Buffalo's Gary Marangi, who came in when Ferguson was knocked out in the fourth quarter, threw an 18-yard touchdown pass to Chandler with 1:28 left.

Jones, who finished the game with 306 yards passing and 59 yards rushing, picked apart the Buffalo secondary, especially after starting defensive back Ike Harrison was injured in the first quarter.

"At this stage we're just too crippled to play pass defense," Bills Coach Lou Saban said. "When he went out today we knew we were in trouble. We're scoring 35 to 40 points a game and we're having a heck of a time."

The win brought the Colts record to 4-4 and Marchbroda felt the victory will help his young ball club.

"This is our first big victory," Marchbroda said. "The way it was achieved should help us tremendously."

Simpson, who finished the game with 123 yards rushing and another 71 yards in pass receptions, gave the Colts credit for the way they came back.

"You've got to give them credit," he said. "They didn't quit. I give them a lot of credit."

Buckley Holds $50,000 Lead

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — Despite splitting his eight games, Roy Buckley regained the top spot Sunday night in the $50,000 Syracuse Open bowling tournament.

Buckley had surrendered the lead for the first time to John Wilcox late in qualifying Sunday afternoon, but regained it with two games left in the night's match play session.

Including 30 bonus pins for each of his wins, Buckley's 28-game total pinfall was 6,135. Wilcox was runner-up at 6,070, followed by Sam Guarino of Detroit, 6,025; Eddie Ressler of Allentown, Pa., with 6,002; and Mark Roth of Staten Island, N.Y., with 5,981.

Buckley, a Columbus, Ohio, pro who has won two of the last three steps on the Professional Bowlers Association tour, knocked down 1,841 pins—131 more than Wilcox—to pass the Williamsport, Pa., bowler.

Although Buckley regained the lead, it was Guarino and Roth who were the night's hottest bowlers. Guarino had the high block, 1,858, and won seven of eight. Roth came through with a 1,814 and also won seven as he and Guarino jumped from a 15th place tie.

Wilcox edged Buckley 226-225 in the first match and seemed on his way to a large lead, but the 97-pin edge that match gave him proved to be his highest of the night. When Buckley beat Paul Moser of Medford, Mass., 234-214, while Wilcox lost to Vince Mazzanti Jr. of Levittown, Pa., 228-206, Buckley was back in the lead.

Match play resumes Monday with eight games in the afternoon and the final eight in the evening. The winner will pocket $5,000.

Cowboys Hoping To Forget

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys' youth brigade, long on enthusiasm, short on experience and only a half-game off their division lead, take on the improved Kansas City Chiefs tonight, hoping to forget the bitter aftertaste of last week's disappointment in Washington.

"Our guys had better be thinking about Kansas City," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry, whose team dropped a tough overtime decision to the Redskins a week ago. "This isn't the same team we saw in the preseason (when the Chiefs won). They had won three games in a row and almost beat Houston."

"There is no more than three to seven points difference between our team and any other in the league. Every team gives us its best."

It will be only the second time the two teams have met in a regular season game, although in the early days of both clubs (when the Chiefs were the Dallas Texans) they played in the same stadium.

And the Cowboys must defeat Kansas City to keep pace with Washington and St. Louis in the NFC East. Both the Redskins and Cardinals had to rally Sunday to win, but they managed victories that boosted their records to 6-2.

The Cowboys (5-2) have used the big play and the extra effort produced by their youngsters to become one of the surprise teams in the NFL this year.

When asked to assess why Dallas has jumped into the playoff race this year, Landry's special assistant, Ernie Allen, had a quick answer.

"The rookies on our team," he said. "We have 12 of them and they have all made a contribution to our team. And they just don't make the mistakes you expect a rookie to make."

Allen Picks on Wrong People

By RICK GOSSELIN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — George Allen is making enemies with the wrong people.

Allen's Washington Redskins rallied from a 10-7 halftime deficit Sunday to squelch the New York Giants 21-13—the 10th straight time the Redskins have knocked off the Giants. It was the 13th consecutive triumph by an Allen-coached team over the New Yorkers, with the first coming while Allen was at Los Angeles.

But Allen was not content with the eight-point victory and did his best to add another touchdown with less than 30 seconds to play after Ed Brown ran an interception back 33 yards to the New York five.

On the first play, quarterback Randy Johnson dropped back but fired an incomplete pass over the head of Charley Taylor in the end zone. He threw again on the second play, again too long, and sent Ralph Nelson off tackle on the third play with just 12 seconds left on the clock.

As the gun went off to end the game, Washington's field goal team was running onto the field.

New York Coach Bill Arnsparger darted across the field toward Allen at game's end and began screaming at his counterpart before finally relenting to aides who were trying to direct him toward the locker room.

"That's his style," New York linebacker Pat Hughes said of Allen. "He's done it to us three years in a row. Most teams would have sat on the ball and consider themselves grateful they came out with a victory. But there are a few teams who live by their own set of rules and are compelled to do things like that."

"He's done it to us before," defensive end Jack Gregory said. "I suppose I wasn't really surprised this time. Maybe Randy (Johnson) didn't want to embarrass us any more."

Spider Lockhart, who had one of three New York interceptions in the game, admitted he too had initial thoughts Johnson may have been trying more for an incompletion than a completion in the final seconds.

"After he threw the first pass, I thought he was probably trying to miss," Lockhart said of his former teammate. "After he threw the second pass I thought maybe he's trying to miss. But after that third play, I knew they were trying to score."

"Of course we were trying to score," Allen said. "If there's a tie at the end of the year in our division it's decided on total points. We try to score as many points as we can every game. Our division may be decided by one point, who knows. Last week when we beat Dallas in overtime, we wanted to try for the extra point but the officials wouldn't let us."

"Maybe it's true," Giants' linebacker Brad Van Pelt said of Allen's explanation. "But maybe he's just trying to get the people off his back. I'm sure if it was true he would have called time out after third down and tried the field goal. That was a sure three points."

"It's his prerogative to play it any way he wants to," a composed Arnsparger said after the game.

"I don't see why we should get so upset about it," defensive tackle John McDaniel said. "It's nothing new. He tries to do it (run up the core) about once a year against us."

A. J. Foyt Could Empathize

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — A.J. Foyt, driving a car that mechanics worked over only the night before, trailed early leader Johnny Rutherford for 87 laps and knew exactly how Rutherford felt when he dropped out with mechanical trouble.

"I was running after him hard and catching him a little bit," said Foyt after winning Sunday's Phoenix 150 at FasTrack International Raceway. "I don't know if I could have beat him or not, but I was chasing him hard."

"I really felt sorry for him when I saw his car start smoking, but it's happened to me before and I know exactly how he felt."

With Rutherford sidelined with mechanical problems, Foyt paced the field the last 21 laps and had little trouble in winning his seventh championship race of the year. He earned $15,340.

Beside Rutherford, the fast pace also eliminated Gordon Johncock, who led 11 laps, and Wally Dallenbach, who led three.

Man Hurtin'

A man in pain is Billy Kilmer, Washington Redskin quarterback, after being decked before halftime Sunday by the New York Giants. Concerned teammate is Bob Brunet. Injury was diagnosed as mild right shoulder separation. Redskins went on to 21-13 victory behind backup QB Randy Johnson. (UPI)

The bitter climax spoiled a brilliant job of second half quarterbacking by Johnson, who came on late in the first half after Billy Kilmer left the game with a right shoulder separation when he was hit while throwing an interception.

Johnson led the Redskins on two sustained drives—their only two of the day—and capped them with a Larry Brown sweep of left end for one yard and a touchdown and a Bob Brunet TD plunge from two yards out. Johnson hit nine of 13 passes for 116 yards in the second half.

Kilmer, who completed just two of seven passes and threw a pair of interceptions before he left, combined with Frank Grant with a 96-yard pass-run play for the first Washington score.

"All I can say is that it's a helluva way to end the year," said Foyt. "This has been my guinea pig car. It didn't work at all during qualifying Saturday so we changed everything around for this race."

He ran the race in 1:21.3 at an average speed of 111.055 miles an hour.

Foyt, who earlier wrapped up his sixth national championship, and second place finisher Tom Sneva were the only drivers to complete all 150 laps. Sneva won $9,167.

Mario Andretti, making his first start of the season in a race outside of the three 500-milers, finished third, followed by Billy Vukovich, Al Unser, Gary Bettenhausen, Jim McElreth, Pancho Carter, Bill Puterbaugh and Lloyd Ruby.

The race carried a record purse of $56,475. The caution flag was flown 24 laps due to three minor accidents. There were no injuries.

Bill Walton's Absence Boon for Rue Martin

By United Press International
If nothing else, the absence of Bill Walton in the Portland Trail Blazers' lineup is at long last making LaRue Martin look like a number one draft choice.

Few probably remember it now, but Martin was the top choice of the entire National Basketball Association back in 1972 when the Trail Blazers plucked him out of Loyola of Chicago and relative obscurity. Alas, the stigma of being No. 1 was too much to live up to and Martin languished three years on the Portland bench, averaging a little over five points per game.

But, with Walton sidelined with a sprained ankle, the 6-11 Martin is suddenly the Trail Blazers' No. 1 center again and Sunday he pulled down a career high 22 rebounds to spark a 116-96 Portland victory over the New York Knicks.

Martin, who eclipsed his previous rebounding high of 18 set Friday night, scored 18 points in Sunday's nationally televised Portland victory. The Blazers' Geoff Petrie led all scorers with 24 points, while Sidney Wicks added 21 and pulled down 10 rebounds. Earl Monroe was high man for New York with 23.

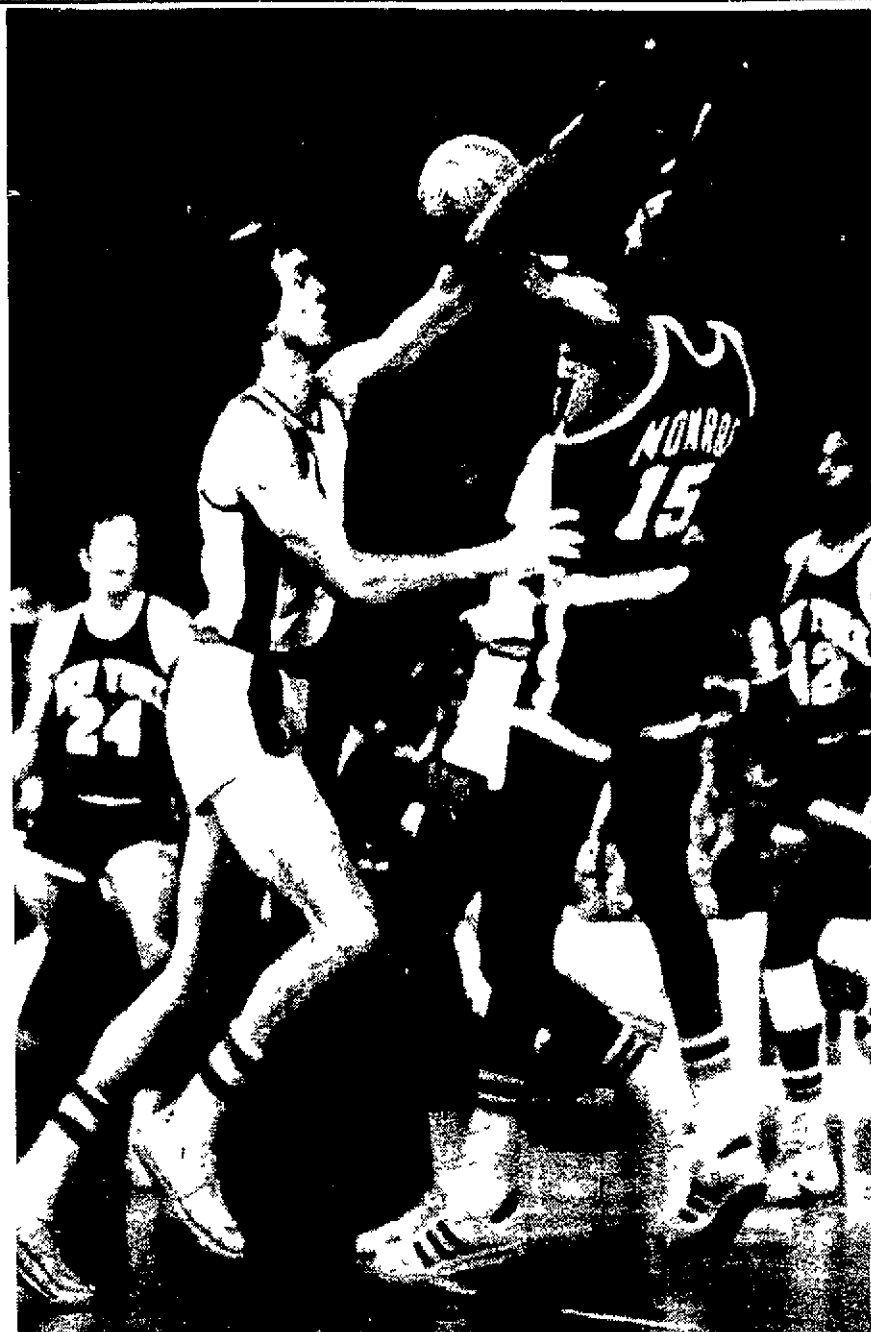

In other NBA games Sunday, Seattle put down New Orleans, 111-97, and Los Angeles ripped Kansas City, 125-112. In the only American Basketball Association game, St. Louis upended San Diego, 95-92.

SuperSonics 11, Jazz 97
Freddie Brown poured in 41 points, including 29 in the first half, as the Sonics handed the Jazz their second straight loss after six consecutive wins. Jazz coach Bill Van Breda Koff, obviously feeling the sudden pressure of losing again, was thrown out of the game in the second period with a pair of technical fouls after arguing with the officials. The Sonics hit on 75 per cent of their shots in that period.

Lakers 125, Kings 112
Cazzie Russell came off the bench to spark the Lakers with 19 second-quarter points as Los Angeles extended its home court winning streak to four games. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had 19 points and 18 rebounds for the Lakers, while Nate Archibald, who sat out the fourth quarter, had 18 points for Kansas City.

Spirits 95, Sails 92
Don Chaney scored a freak basket with 16 seconds left to propel St. Louis over San Diego. Chaney grappled for the ball with San Diego's Bobby Warren under the basket and it squirted out of both players' hands and spun up and through the net for a 94-90 St. Louis lead. Marvin Barnes had 17 points for St. Louis, but San Diego rookie Mark Olberding led all scorers with 21.

Gare Balances Books Against Canadians

By United Press International
The way the Buffalo Sabres' Danny Gare figures it, he owed something to his team and the Montreal Canadiens.

The smallish 5-foot-9 Gare, who has always maintained he has to try harder than other National Hockey League players because of his size, balanced the books on the Canadiens Sunday night. The Buffalo winger scored his 10th and 11th goals of the season as the Sabres took a 6-1 victory from Montreal to remain unbeaten in 10 home games.

Gare, who now ranks among the NHL's top goal-scorers, figured that his two Sunday made up for two the Canadiens got in his absence in a 3-2 victory over Buffalo last Monday in Montreal.

"I got hurt in the first period that game and the man (Yvon Lambert) I would have been checking got two goals that beat us," Gare said. "Maybe if I hadn't gotten hurt, Lambert wouldn't have gotten those two goals, so I figured I owed the team something."

The Sabres, who gave up the first goal of the game at 1:58 of the first period and were outshot, 10-3, in the opening session, went ahead to stay on Gare's goal at 3:58 of the second period.

The goal that broke Montreal's back, though, came later in the second period when Peter McNab won a faceoff in the Canadiens zone. The puck went to Jerry Korab in the middle of the ice just inside the blue line. Korab put a low shot under Larocque's pass to make it 3-1.

Elsewhere in the NHL Sunday, Philadelphia outlasted Pittsburgh, 6-4; St. Louis downed Washington, 5-3; Detroit put away Atlanta, 6-3; Chicago blanked Minnesota, 3-0, and Boston clubbed California, 6-3.

In the World Hockey Association, Cincinnati topped New England, 4-2; Quebec drubbed Phoenix, 7-3; Houston edged Denver, 3-2; Winnipeg vanquished Toronto, 5-3, and Edmonton bested Cleveland, 4-1.

Bruins 6, Seals 3
Boston's victory was engineered by a welcomed trio of new (or is it old) faces. Bobby Orr, playing only his second game since returning from a knee injury, had three assists, while ex-New York Rangers Brad Park and Jean Ratelle had one goal apiece, their first as Bruins. Bobby Schmaltz had two of four Boston goals in the second period.

Flyers 6, Penguins 4
In typical Flyer fashion, the defending NHL champs brawled for 19 minutes in the final 4:44 of the game before reining out the victory thanks to Bobby Clarke's season high 13th goal. Philadelphia's Gary Dornhoefer and Pittsburgh's Steve Durbano were the principle combatants in the bench-clearing brawl that saw four players ejected. Clarke scored the first goal for the Flyers, who built a 4-1 lead going into the final period.

Red Wings 6, Flames 3
Michel Bergeron and Dan Maloney fired home two goals apiece as the Red Wings thwarted Atlanta's chances of climbing out of the Patrick Division cellar past the idle New York Rangers. Mike Bloom and Walt McKechnie also scored for Detroit, while newly-acquired Ed Giacomin stopped 23 shots in goal.

Blues 5, Capitals 3
Bruce Affleck scored his first NHL goal at 1:58 of the third period and it proved to be the game-winner for St. Louis. Affleck, a second-year defenseman, scored on a power play. The Caps are still winless in five games at home.

Blank Hawks 3, North Stars 0
Tony Esposito notched his third shutout of the season and his 55th lifetime as the Black Hawks extended their undefeated streak to six games. Esposito, who had goal support from Dick Redmond, Ivan Boldirev and Bobby Sheehan, stopped 29 Minnesota shots, including two from point blank range by Bill Goldsworthy.

WHA
Locas and Pierre Guite scored third-period goals to lift Cincinnati past New England. Rejean Houle and Steve Sutherland scored two goals apiece in Quebec's runaway triumph over Phoenix. Murray Hall slapped an unassisted goal past Denver goalie Cam Newton at 9:35 of the final period to propel Houston into sole possession of first place in the WHA West Division. Winnipeg's Norm Beaudin and Anders Hedberg scored two apiece as the Jets built up an early 5-0 lead and then held on to beat Toronto. Rusty Patenaude and Mike Rogers each scored two goals while goalie Dave Dryden stopped 35 shots in Edmonton's win over Cleveland.

Baker Captures Race; Calls Petty Toughest

HAMPTON, Ga. (UPI) — Drivers on the NASCAR circuit, who are accustomed to spending their Sunday afternoons looking at the back of Richard Petty's Dodge, now have a winner's-eye-view of how it feels to have Petty closing in toward the finish line.

"Richard Petty is the hardest man in the world to beat," Buddy Baker said after winning the rain-delayed Dixie 500 Sunday. "That number 43 looks like a semi-truck when he's behind you."

Baker, a Ford driver from Charlotte, N.C., lost the lead only momentarily to David Pearson following a 50-minute rain delay with only 27 laps to run. He said afterward, "A lot of the drivers have said Atlanta International Raceway has been a jinx to me, but I feel Talladega (Ala.) has been worse."

WOODLAND HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Los Angeles Dodger third baseman Ron Cey became a father Saturday when his wife, Fran, gave birth to the couple's first child, Daniel Elliott.

Name All-Europe Stars

LONDON (UPI) — Joao Oliveira of Brazil and Romania's Nadia Comaneci have been voted Sportsman and Sports-woman of 1975 in UPI's annual poll of European sports editors. Both Oliveira and Comaneci burst into world prominence for the first time this year.

Oliveira, the 23-year-old Brazilian soldier shattered the world triple jump record during the Pan American games in Mexico City, with a leap of 58-feet, 8 1/4 inches to break the old mark by one foot, 5 1/2 inches.

Miss Comaneci won the European gymnastics title in Norway with an all-round performance that threatens to overshadow Russian stars Ludmilla Tourischeva and Olga Korbut in next year's Olympic Games. Miss Comaneci will be 14 on Wednesday.

Oliveira polled 241 votes to defeat last year's winner Muhammad Ali, who retained his world heavyweight boxing crown in Manila in a classic fight against Joe Frazier. Ali polled 230 votes with Tim Shaw, the Long Beach, Calif., swimmer who holds world records at 200, 400, 800 and 1,500 meters, getting 210.

Miss Comaneci edged out 1973 winner Kornelia Ender of East Germany by four votes. She received 263 to the East German swimmer's 259 with Faina Melnik, Russia's world record discus thrower, third with 233 and Annemarie Proell-Moser, Austria's five-time women's World Cup alpine ski champion fourth with 208.

Best Drops Down, Down

MANCHESTER, England (UPI) — Going free of charge: One former soccer idol. Needs overhauling. Only one previous owner.

George Best, one time valued at $1 million, has been given a free transfer by Manchester United, the club he walked out on two years ago.

The English Football Association said Friday Best was in breach of his contract with the Manchester club and was banned from playing in any country under the jurisdiction of FIFA, the game's world governing body.

But United's decision means the former Northern Ireland international forward can now resume his career and has set his shooting sights on playing in the United States.

"It's not the money that appeals to me, but America is a whole new football scene beginning to come alive," the 29-year-old Irishman said.

"I want to be in there when the North American league season starts in April — though it has not been decided which club I shall join," he added.

Best, who owns a nightclub and a restaurant, nearly joined the New York Cosmos last January. The American club agreed to a $200,000 fee with United, but Best decided against the move and the Cosmos signed Brazilian ace Pele instead.

Ulster Squad Seeded No. 1

KINGSTON

If it's possible to make a comeback after a season of conference championships, top national ranking and regional tournament victories, the Ulster County Community College soccer team did it.

Sunday the Senators of coach George Vizvary were announced as the top seeded team for the Region XV tournament which begins tomorrow. Ulster, 6-1-3, will face eighth seeded Westchester, 8-6-1, at the Dutchess CC field at 1 p.m. in a first round battle.

"We are pleased with being seeded first," said Vizvary. "After we started with a loss and a tie we didn't think we'd get this far. But we have really come together, and our spirit is high."

Ulster is in a strong bracket with fourth seeded Nassau (7-2-2) and fifth seeded New York City (5-5-1). The other contenders are second seeded Dutchess (11-1-2) which will face No. 7 Suffolk (8-5-1), and third seeded Bronx (6-0-3) which will open against No. 6 Orange (8-5-1).

A victory tomorrow will advance the Senators to Thursday's semifinals. The Region XV championship will be played Saturday.

Vizvary knows the task ahead isn't easy. "Westchester is a very physical team," he said. "They're the ones that injured Segundo (Zapater)."

Should the favorites advance, however, the Thursday foe will be Nassau, a team Vizvary rates very highly. Nassau holds a 6-0 win over New York City in the regular season.

Dutchess, ranked ninth nationally, is the favorite in the other bracket. The Falcons take on Suffolk at the Westchester field at 11 a.m. while Bronx and Orange play immediately afterwards.

This will be Ulsters fifth regional tournament, and except for a few viruses the Senators are ready. "We made the trip last year," said Vizvary with a touch of chagrin, "and we know what it's like. We think we'll go back."

A talent laden UCCC squad cleaned up a year ago, winning the Mid-Hudson Conference, No. 1 national ranking and a spot in the national tournament with a Region XV tournament victory. Ineligible players squashed those achievements however, and dealt a blow to soccer tradition at Ulster.

Vizvary went with a primarily freshman team this year, and it did not look promising at the start. The season opened with a 2-2 tie with Dutchess, a team which eventually deadlocked UCCC for this Year's MHC title.

Ulster improved throughout the season, remained unbeaten in conference and regional games and lost only once to the Hartwick College junior varsity. UCCC returned to the NJCAA top ten, winning the tenth spot in the last week of the season. Along the way Vizvary discovered a new star in forward George Vassilaras and developed a strong fullback contingent in Dave Farrell, Steve Mason, John Ivankovic and Aldo Sergovic.

Trudeau Stands Firm

MONTREAL (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau reiterated Sunday the federal government's decision not to pick up a deficit for staging the 1976 Summer Olympics, a funds shortage now reported at around $400 million.

"I don't think the federal taxpayers should be called upon to pay for this," Trudeau said in an interview on CFCF radio in Montreal.

Trudeau said that when British Columbia was considering staging the Winter Olympics, provincial officials there had asked how much the federal government would contribute, and whether Ottawa would pick up the deficit.

"We told them, 'No, we're not picking up Quebec's deficit, so we're not picking up yours,'" Trudeau said.

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa was to have met over the weekend with Montreal city officials to review progress at the Olympic sites and there was speculation the provincial government might take over management of the games.

But neither Bourassa's office nor the staff of Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau were available for comment. It was not known whether any meetings were held. Bourassa was expected to make a statement Tuesday in the National Assembly in Quebec City.

Pate Leader In Qualifier

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (UPI) — Jerry Pate led a field of 25 golfers receiving coveted Professional Golfers Association cards Saturday by winning the PGA 1975 Fall Qualifying School tourney.

Pate, of Pensacola, Fla., had a six-day total of 423 to win the top prize of $1,200. He held off a challenge by George Burns III, who finished two strokes behind after double-bogeying the 17th hole Saturday.

A total of 380 golfers from throughout the country competed in the tourney, but only 25 received the PGA cards, including two black golfers, Bobby Strohle, Albany, Ga., who had a 428 total for a fifth-place tie with Steve Veriato, Byron, Tex., and Jim Thorpe, Baltimore, who finished in a five-way tie for 16th place at 436.

Baker Captures Race; Calls Petty Toughest

HAMPTON, Ga. (UPI) — Drivers on the NASCAR circuit, who are accustomed to spending their Sunday afternoons looking at the back of Richard Petty's Dodge, now have a winner's-eye-view of how it feels to have Petty closing in toward the finish line.

"Richard Petty is the hardest man in the world to beat," Buddy Baker said after winning the rain-delayed Dixie 500 Sunday. "That number 43 looks like a semi-truck when he's behind you."

Baker, a Ford driver from Charlotte, N.C., lost the lead only momentarily to David Pearson following a 50-minute rain delay with only 27 laps to run. He said afterward, "A lot of the drivers have said Atlanta International Raceway has been a jinx to me, but I feel Talladega (Ala.) has been worse."

A Little Penguin

WOODLAND HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Los Angeles Dodger third baseman Ron Cey became a father Saturday when his wife, Fran, gave birth to the couple's first child, Daniel Elliott.

Cey batted .283 with 25 homers for the Dodgers this past season, driving home 101 runs.

Name All-Europe Stars

LONDON (UPI) — Joao Oliveira of Brazil and Romania's Nadia Comaneci have been voted Sportsman and Sports-woman of 1975 in UPI's annual poll of European sports editors.

Both Oliveira and Comaneci burst into world prominence for the first time this year.

Oliveira, the 23-year-old Brazilian soldier shattered the world triple jump record during the Pan American games in Mexico City, with a leap of 58-feet, 8 1/4 inches to break the old mark by one foot, 5 1/2 inches.

Miss Comaneci won the European gymnastics title in Norway with an all-round performance that threatens to overshadow Russian stars Ludmilla Tourischeva and Olga Korbut in next year's Olympic Games. Miss Comaneci will be 14 on Wednesday.

Oliveira polled 241 votes to defeat last year's winner Muhammad Ali, who retained his world heavyweight boxing crown in Manila in a classic fight against Joe Frazier. Ali polled 230 votes with Tim Shaw, of the Long Beach, Calif., swimmer who holds world records at 200, 400, 800 and 1,500 meters, getting 210.

Miss Comaneci edged out 1973 winner Kornelia Ender of East Germany by four votes. She received 263 to the East German swimmer's 259 with Faina Melnik, Russia's world record discus thrower, third with 233 and Annemarie Proell-Moser, Austria's five-time women's World Cup alpine ski champion fourth with 208.

Best Drops Down, Down

MANCHESTER, England (UPI) — Going free of charge: One former soccer idol. Needs overhauling. Only one previous owner.

George Best, one time valued at $1 million, has been given a free transfer by Manchester United, the club he walked out on two years ago.

The English Football Association said Friday Best was in breach of his contract with the Manchester club and was banned from playing in any country under the jurisdiction of FIFA, the game's world governing body.

But United's decision means the former Northern Ireland international forward can now resume his career and has set his shooting sights on playing in the United States.

"It's not the money that appeals to me, but America is a whole new football scene beginning to come alive," the 29-year-old Irishman said.

"I want to be in there when the North American league season starts in April — though it has not been decided which club I shall join," he added.

Best, who owns a nightclub and a restaurant, nearly joined the New York Cosmos last January. The American club agreed to a $200,000 fee with United, but Best decided against the move and the Cosmos signed Brazilian ace Pele instead.

Ulster Squad Seeded No. 1

KINGSTON

If it's possible to make a comeback after a season of conference championships, top national ranking and regional tournament victories, the Ulster County Community College soccer team did it.

Sunday the Senators of coach George Vizvary were announced as the top seeded team for the Region XV tournament which begins tomorrow. Ulster, 6-1-3, will face eighth seeded Westchester, 8-6-1, at the Dutchess CC field at 1 p.m. in a first round battle.

"We are pleased with being seeded first," said Vizvary. "After we started with a loss and a tie we didn't think we'd get this far. But we have really come together, and our spirit is high."

Ulster is in a strong bracket with fourth seeded Nassau (7-2-2) and fifth seeded New York City (5-5-1). The other contenders are second seeded Dutchess (11-1-2) which will face No. 7 Suffolk (8-5-1), and third seeded Bronx (6-0-3) which will open against No. 6 Orange (8-5-1).

A victory tomorrow will advance the Senators to Thursday's semifinals. The Region XV championship will be played Saturday.

Vizvary knows the task ahead isn't easy. "Westchester is a very physical team," he said. "They're the ones that injured Segundo (Zapater)."

Should the favorites advance, however, the Thursday foe will be Nassau, a team Vizvary rates very highly. Nassau holds a 6-0 won over New York City in the regular season.

Dutchess, ranked ninth nationally, is the favorite in the other bracket. The Falcons take on Suffolk at the Westchester field at 11 a.m. while Bronx and Orange play immediately afterwards.

This will be Ulsters fifth regional tournament, and except for a few viruses the Senators are ready. "We made the trip last year," said Vizvary with a touch of chagrin, "and we know what it's like. We think we'll go back."

A talent laden UCCC squad cleaned up a year ago, winning the Mid-Hudson Conference, No. 1 national ranking and a spot in the national tournament with a Region XV tournament victory. Ineligible players squashed those achievements however, and dealt a blow to soccer tradition at Ulster.

Vizvary went with a primarily freshman team this year, and it did not look promising at the start. The season opened with a 2-2 tie with Dutchess, a team which eventually deadlocked UCCC for this Year's MHC title.

Ulster improved throughout the season, remained unbeaten in conference and regional games and lost only once to the Hartwick College junior varsity. UCCC returned to the NJCAA top ten, winning the tenth spot in the last week of the season. Along the way Vizvary discovered a new star in forward George Vassilaras and developed a strong fullback contingent in Dave Farrell, Steve Mason, John Ivankovic and Aldo Sergovic.

Trudeau Stands Firm

MONTREAL (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau reiterated Sunday the federal government's decision not to pick up a deficit for staging the 1976 Summer Olympics, a funds shortage now reported at around $400 million.

"I don't think the federal taxpayers should be called upon to pay for this," Trudeau said in an interview on CFCF radio in Montreal.

Trudeau said that when British Columbia was considering staging the Winter Olympics, provincial officials there had asked how much the federal government would contribute, and whether Ottawa would pick up a deficit.

"We told them, 'No, we're not picking up Quebec's deficit, so we're not picking up yours,'" Trudeau said.

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa was to have met over the weekend with Montreal city officials to review progress at the Olympic sites and there was speculation the provincial government might take over management of the games.

But neither Bourassa's office nor the staff of Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau were available for comment. It was not known whether any meetings were held. Bourassa was expected to make a statement Tuesday in the National Assembly in Quebec City.

Pate Leader In Qualifier

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (UPI) — Jerry Pate led a field of 25 golfers receiving coveted Professional Golfers Association cards Saturday by winning the PGA 1975 Fall Qualifying School tourney.

Pate, of Pensacola, Fla., had a six-day total of 423 to win the top prize of $1,200. He held off a challenge by George Burns III, who finished two strokes behind after double-bogeying the 17th hole Saturday.

A total of 380 golfers from throughout the country competed in the tourney, but only 25 received the PGA cards, including two black golfers, Bobby Strobe, Albany, Ga., who had a 428 total for a fifth-place tie with Steve Veriato, Byron, Tex., and Jim Thorpe, Baltimore, who finished in a five-way tie for 16th place at 436.

Four of the 'Top 10' Find Banana Peels in the Bowl Picture

By UPI
In a year when upsets have not been common, coaches of six of the top 20 college football teams, including four of the top 10, found banana peels in their bowl picture Saturday along with their cereal.

The list of peels included second-ranked Oklahoma, 23-3 to Kansas; eighth-ranked Penn State, 15-14 to North Carolina State; ninth-ranked Southern California, 13-10 to Stanford; No. 10 Florida, 10-7 to Georgia; 12th-ranked San Diego State, 31-24 to Arizona; and No. 14 Pittsburgh, 17-14 to West Virginia.

Not surprisingly, the losing coaches were less than pleased.

"This ain't much fun," said Oklahoma's Barry Switzer, who lost for the first time in three years as the Sooners' coach.

"The way we're playing, we shouldn't go to the toilet bowl," was the blunt appraisal from outgoing Southern California Coach John McKay.

But the upsets left the post-season bowl picture somewhat clearer.

The Rose Bowl combatants should be decided by the outcome of three games. Ohio State-Michigan on Nov. 22 will determine the Big 10 representative; UCLA-USC on Nov. 28 and California-Stanford on Nov. 22 should decide the Pacific-8 title, with UCLA in the driver's seat thanks to earlier wins over both Cal and Stanford. If the Bruins lose, the previous week's winner should earn the Rose spot.

The Nov. 22 Nebraska-Oklahoma matchup will decide the Big Eight; the winner will probably meet the loser of the Ohio State-Michigan matchup in the Orange Bowl, while the loser, especially if it's Nebraska, would be in line for a possible Sugar or Cotton Bowl bid.

The Cotton Bowl's Southwest Conference representative should be known after the Texas-Texas A&M clash on Nov. 28; the only possible wrench there is that a three-way tie could result if A&M won that game and then lost the following week to Arkansas, also still in the SWC title picture.

Alabama, now alone at the top of the Southeastern Conference, can go to either the Sugar or Cotton Bowl. The other major spot is still up for grabs.

Back to this weekend's games. Most of the upsets were close; Oklahoma's, the most surprising, wasn't. "We certainly won the mistake race," said Switzer after his Sooners lost four of five fumbles and had three passes intercepted.

Kansas halfback Laverne Smith scored a pair of touchdowns from 21 and 18 yards respectively and the Jayhawk defense bottled up the Sooners for only a first quarter 52-yard field goal by Tony DiPietro. It was the least points scored by an Oklahoma team in 99 games and the loss snapped a 37-game unbeaten streak for the Sooners, who were 25-point

Laurel Must Sweeten the Pot

LAUREL, Md. (UPI) — Laurel officials admitted Sunday they will have to sweeten the pot in the future if the Washington D.C. International is going to remain a showcase world racing event.

French filly Nobiliary took a purse of $100,000 for winning the 24th running of the $150,000 race Saturday.

But Laurel already is facing direct competition from the new $350,000 National Thoroughbred Championship.

This year, the Washington International again attracted a top quality field of nine competitors from five nations, but it drew only a taped television showing and a disappointing crowd of less than 27,000.

Laurel president John Shapiro commented even in advance of the event: "It was most satisfying the way the owners and trainers responded to invitations this year. There is no reason, however, to expect such support in the future unless the value of the International is increased."

"The race needs at least another $100,000 in purse money, a solid television commitment and a permanent sponsor, if possible," he said.

Nobiliary, who led the International from start to finish and won by three-quarters of a length over another French filly, Comtesse de Lor, is headed to Florida for winter racing.

Porsche Winner In Road Rally

MARQUETTE, Mich. (UPI) — The Polish team of Sobiesaw Sasada and Wilbur Schramm powered their factory-prepared Porsche Carrera to victory Sunday in the 426-mile Press On Regardless road rally through Michigan's upper peninsula.

The winners finished more than 10 minutes ahead of the second place crew, Tom Polles and Ginny Reese of Ann Arbor, Mich., in a Volvo 122. Guy Light and Don Gekel of Saginaw finished third in the 26-year-old event.

Only 32 of the 66 starters finished the race that started Saturday afternoon in Marquette and wound through rugged hill country in cool, wet weather.

Is the Women's Liberation Movement Running Out of Steam?

By UPI

Is the women's liberation movement running out of steam?

Disagreements at the annual conference of the National Organization for Women recently showed a split between the "majority caucus" and leaders from the mainstream — the chapters.

On Oct. 29 the "Alice Doesn't" strike called by NOW was a flop coast to coast.

In last week's elections a stunning defeat for statewide Equal Rights Amendments in New York and New Jersey could only be interpreted as a step backward.

The voters had been asked to approve an amendment to the respective state constitutions making equal rights law.

Both states, via their legislatures, earlier had approved ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment to the federal constitution. That still stands and if four more states approve the amendment at the federal level — bringing the total to the required 38 — the constitutional amendment will become the law of the land.

Bigger troubles for the women's movement were left in the wake of the stormy annual conference in Philadelphia.

For the first time, a president who wished a second term had competition. Karen DeCrow, the lawyer-journalist head of the organization from Syracuse, had to run in an field of seven. She represented what was called "the majority caucus."

After two days of what observers called bitter fighting she and her candidates won — but by a slim margin. Their slogan — "Out of the mainstream into the revolution" — disturbed many delegates.

Ditto for Mrs. DeCrow's avowed intention to lead the National Organization of Women into new paths, including endorsements of candidates for office.

Some critics, including Betty Friedman, mother of the women's movement and in 1968 founder of NOW, are concerned about what such a stratagem will do to the feminist organization.

In an interview following the conference Ms. Friedman said getting into politics could mean NOW might be taken over "by the male political machine."

And in another interview, following her victory by a slim margin, Mrs. DeCrow whistled a different tune, plugging for the political endorsements by NOW.

"I ran on a platform the aim of which is to strengthen NOW as a feminist organization," she said.

"The way that the political endorsement fits in is this — it will give us much more clout as a feminist organization."

"To be specific, nothing frightens a politician more than the fact that he may be replaced. This is simply one of the ways to get more power for feminists."

Mrs. Friedman said since the convention she has had phone calls from chapter members in many parts of the country — "All expressing enormous anxiety about the future course of NOW if it follows the majority caucus theme of the convention."

Considering the splits at the annual conference and the way the "Alice Doesn't" strike fell on its face, the next question put to Mrs. Friedman was this: Do you think someone is trying to destroy the National Organization for Women?

From what she saw at the convention, she suspects maybe.

"You expect differences; we're always had differences," Mrs. Friedman said. "But what I saw there appeared to be a takeover."

"And this plan to endorse political candidates. I think that is very bad. The one main organization in the woman's movement must remain committed to the women's movement and not be taken over by the male political machine or the political ambitions of women."

Mrs. DeCrow made these points about NOW's course in the next year:

—The ERA. "We are going to push a program in which one state that has ratified the ERA amendment will adopt a state that hasn't. For example, Maine is adopting North Carolina and will help with that the ERA campaign there."

—We want to include in the movement women who are oppressed on the basis of race or sexual preference. Blacks and lesbians have not been comfortable in the movement up to now.

—Goal of feminism. "To create a society where a person's gender makes no difference in what happens to their lives."

—Abortion. "This year we're going to be confronting the Roman Catholic hierarchy because it uses its tax exempt money to work against our right to have an abortion."

They also use tax exempt money to work against the Equal Rights Amendment. We feel this is a violation of church and state separation."

—On housewives. "We are fighting for economic security for the housewife. We want her included under Social Security. We also want to help the eight million working women in this country who make less than the minimum wage."

—On child care. "We have to be pushing every member of congress to demand a veto-proof childcare bill, a bill which guarantees enough money so every parent who wants to use child care will have it available. At the moment there's virtually no child care in the United States."

All that may be so, but the question still comes up — "Is the women's movement running out of steam?"

"We have sixty-some thousand members — up 6 percent in a year," Mrs. DeCrow answered. "I've never seen so much steam as in Philadelphia at the convention."

About the year ahead in NOW, Mrs. DeCrow expects it to be the best ever.

But some of Reagan supporters have indicated that they will not be appeased with the Rockefeller withdrawal and plan to push ahead for their favorite conservative candidate.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, (R-Ariz.), has bolstered Ford's chances for the nomination in urging Reagan to not challenge the Republican incumbent. But there appeared to be no rush to throw in the towel on the part of Reagan forces.

Ford called Goldwater recently and swore him to secrecy on the impending news that Rockefeller would not be on the ticket. Rockefeller also called Goldwater. He was one of the few — if not the only senator — who was clued before Rockefeller walked over to the White House and handed his letter personally to Ford disclaiming any further ambition to be the President's running mate.

Rockefeller has become the point contention in the party and a lightning rod for conservative opposition to Ford. Whether that opposition is ameliorated now only time will tell.

The vice president has tried to play the game. He has been loyal in his pronouncements, deviating perhaps a bit on aid to New York. Like all his predecessors he chafes at some of the chores that befall him in his role. As he put it, he spends his time going to funerals and cutting ceremonial ribbons.

For months his position has been ambiguous in view of the pressures from the right on Ford. The President said on several occasions that Rockefeller would have to go out and win his own constituency. Rockefeller had begun that and even won a warm welcome on a foray into the South.

He has promised "categorically" that he will support Ford in the coming election.

The New Hampshire and Florida primaries have been the biggest concern for Ford with reports that Reagan has a large popular following in both states. As the days go on, Ford may even be asked to debate Reagan, who is much smoother on the platform from his Hollywood acting days of the past.

But Ford has his own incumbency going for him. He is in the White House and a party does not usually repudiate its own man in the Oval Office at election time.

For both Ford, 62, and Reagan, 67, time is running out. There has been some speculation that Reagan might accept the No. 2 spot.

But there is a question of whether this would appease the moderates in the party since Ford has been taking more and more conservative positions which bring him close to Reagan in philosophy.

There may be a scramble now among politicians who may seek the No. 2 spot on the ticket if Ford wins the nomination. If Ford wins out against Reagan, there may be a move to select a vice presidential candidate who is more of a middle-of-the-roader.

At any rate, Ford apparently is going to take first things first. He has cleared the decks to take on Reagan as the first hurdle. After that there will be time to think of running mates.

Rockefeller's Self-Removal May Not Appease Reagan's Supporters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's supporters are hoping that Ronald Reagan will bow out of the election picture now that Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller has renounced ambitions to hold on to the No. 2 spot after 1976.

But some of Reagan supporters have indicated that they will not be appeased with the Rockefeller withdrawal and plan to push ahead for their favorite conservative candidate.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, (R-Ariz.), has bolstered Ford's chances for the nomination in urging Reagan to not challenge the Republican incumbent. But there appeared to be no rush to throw in the towel on the part of Reagan forces.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has moved to bring a little sunshine into the government's darkest recesses — the regulatory process which oversees virtually every major public and private activity.

The question remains, however, whether the light of day will truly result in any substantive changes in the way government operates.

The Senate voted unanimously last week to require for the first time 47 federal agencies to open their proceedings to the public.

The "sunshine bill" as it came to be called by its sponsors, would also for the first time ban private communications between agencies and outside parties involved in the matters being considered by the agency.

The measure was intended to apply to the executive branch the same reforms the senate had approved for its own committees — requiring them to open their doors to the press and public except for extraordinary circumstances involving national security or personal privacy.

Such legislative reforms have been enacted piecemeal by congress within recent years in the hope that a more open legislative process would win the confidence of the people.

Many legislative markup sessions in both the house and senate are now open. But with few exceptions the press rarely attends them and lobbyists usually fill most of the committee sessions.

Still, agencies like the Federal Trade, Federal Communications, and Interstate Commerce commissions would have to conduct their proceedings in the open under the new measure, an act that could do much to bolster such regulatory agencies, which have recently come under strong attack for being unresponsive to the public.

The measure sets 10 specific grounds on which an agency may vote to close its meetings — among them defense and foreign policy secrets or confidential financial data.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns called the bill "a dangerous piece of legislation," but an amendment to exempt his agency from the measure was killed 57-36.

As Burns sees it, the bill's "sunshine" could cause havoc in the nation's and the world's financial community by disclosing sensitive economic data and information which would be better left confidential.

'Out of the Frying Pan'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Steve McPeak rode his unicycle on a 3 1/2 inch thick cable 700 feet above the Colorado River, but the most harrowing part was waiting on the other side — where he was arrested.

The 30-year-old Las Vegas stuntman walked out onto the cable from the Arizona side of Hoover Dam Saturday, pushing his unicycle and carrying a folding balance pole with an American flag on each end.

After planting a flag in the middle of the 1,500-foot long wire "in celebration of America's bicentennial," McPeak rode his unicycle to the Nevada side of the dam where federal officers charged him with trespassing in an unauthorized area.

John McPeak, the stuntman's brother, said Steve had been planning the ride for some time, but up until the last minute didn't think he would go through with it.

"Believe me, it was quite nerve wracking when he went out onto the wire," John McPeak said. "I thought I was going to get sick."

About 500 persons cheered McPeak on. The cable system, which has a 150-ton capacity, was built in 1932 to lower heavy equipment to the canyon floor.

McPeak, a former member of a Las Vegas hotel high wire act, launched his unicycle career in 1969 by cycling a one-wheeler from Chicago to Las Vegas.

Job for Hoffa's Son

DETROIT (UPI) — James P. Hoffa, son of missing former Teamsters President James R. Hoffa, has been named to a $400-a-week job as a Teamsters' business agent to direct organizers.

Hoffa, who has been an attorney for Local 299, was named to the post Sunday after he gave an impassioned speech to about 600 delegates to a Local 299 seminar.

The delegates gave Hoffa a standing ovation and a representative made a motion to appoint Hoffa to some official post with the union, saying, "We owe it to Jimmy," in reference to the younger Hoffa's father, who disappeared from a suburban restaurant July 30.

Hoffa, who was attending the seminar to discuss the legal aspects of organizing, told the group that his father "left me with a feeling always that as his son I could do better."

A motion was then made that David Johnston, president of Local 299, appoint Hoffa as business agent, an executive position with the union.

The elder Hoffa went from the presidency of Local 299 to the International presidency before his fall from power following a mail fraud and jury tampering conviction.

Dinner Session

The annual dinner meeting of the Ulster County Cooperative Extension Association will be held at the Tamarack Lodge, Greenfield Park, New York on Friday, Nov. 14 at 7 p.m. Mrs. James Dunbar, association president, will conduct a short business meeting after the dinner. The featured speaker will be James Burgraf, Salmonville, New York who will speak on "The Archaeology of the Hudson Valley", topic which includes studies of how Indians used the fertile soils of the Esopus Valley for agriculture. Tickets for the meeting are available at the Extension Office at 74 John Street, Kingston. A nightclub show and dancing will follow the meeting. Please obtain your tickets before Nov. 13.

Probe Underway

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI said today it is conducting a preliminary investigation of allegations involving Internal Revenue Commissioner Donald C. Alexander.

Published news stories said Alexander blocked an audit of tax returns of Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M., who chairs a subcommittee handling IRS appropriations. Alexander also has been criticized for suspending an investigation into Bahaman tax havens used by Americans and curtailing IRS intelligence operations, because he said some tactics used could violate the rights of suspects.

The commissioner has denied any wrongdoing. "We are confirming that at the request of the Department of Justice, the FBI is conducting a preliminary investigation to determine if there has been any violation of federal laws within our jurisdiction," an FBI spokesman said today.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon previously ordered his department to look into the allegations, saying he preferred that to an internal IRS investigation.

The Los Angeles Times reported that it was Simon who referred the matter to the Justice Department.

The Times also reported that a House subcommittee is looking into a possible link between former President Richard M. Nixon and a bank in the Bahamas used by some Americans as a tax haven. The newspaper said an IRS informant reported seeing Nixon's name on a computer printout at the Castle Bank and Trust Co. in Nassau in 1973.

Successful Inmate Self-Help Program

CRANSTON, R.I. (UPI) — Vincent Principe says he didn't know how to use a hammer three years ago. Now he builds high quality wooden furniture that catches the eyes of infrequent visitors to his shop.

Down the hall, his friend Tony Vaglica, 51, manages a ceramics shop. Martin McMurray, 20, weaves rugs on a loom made from a discarded piece of gymnasium equipment and John "Charlie Booth" Murray makes delicate wood burning sketches.

They all work under the same roof because they are maximum-security inmates at the Rhode Island Adult Correctional Institutions.

Keeping inmate minds and hands occupied has been a major problem at the century-old prison.

The industrial shops were burned out during a riot two years ago and the state legislature has been reluctant to appropriate funds for new shops fearing they too would be destroyed. But now prison officials are crediting some inmates and the National Prisoners Reform Association with using their own money and initiative to re-establish craft shops at the facility.

"For whatever reason, the programs which the inmates have now appear to be the most successful in some time," said Corrections Department spokesman Lillian McDaniel.

The items which the inmates make are sold from a NPRA trailer parked outside the prison. Products also have been sold to the inmates' friends and families as well as to several guards.

"The work has given the guards something else from which they can judge us by," inmate Romeo Gabriele said during a recent interview in the prison. "They just don't see us as bad guys. They now also see us as people who have talents which are valuable."

Most of the profits are poured back into the shops for materials. But inmates also are paid wages for the work and some who are awaiting trial are using the money in an attempt to raise bail.

"I used to depend on my wife to send me five or ten bucks every now and then," said Vaglica, who is serving a 15-year sentence for bank robbery. "But now I am able to send her a $20 bill once in a while."

Principe, who is due to finish his sentence for counterfeiting next year, said the key to the program's success is that it was started by the inmates.

"They are working because the inmates want them to work," he said.

Principe said he wants to open a cabinetmaking shop when he gets out.

"Not only will I attempt to sell what I make, but I will also sell the furniture made inside by the inmates," he said.

A MAN AND HIS WORK

Why Is Gas So Expensive?

NEW YORK (UPI) — The motorist "has a legitimate concern" about the rising price of gasoline, the American Petroleum Institute (API) says.

"The price of gasoline has been rising over the past two or three years and, quite frankly, the motorist wonders why," the API said.

"Are the oil companies ripping him off at the pump? What about those windfall profits he's been reading about? Are they the reason the price has risen?"

No, said the API in a recent report breaking down where every penny of the price of a gallon of regular goes — a procedure it notes is difficult to do with any precision.

API said actual costs vary substantially among oil companies for a number of reasons: type of crude used, where it comes from and at what price; refinery efficiency; transportation and marketing factors among others. To break out one product — in this case motor gasoline — from the many products made from crude oil in the refinery stream can result at best in a "guesstimate," the API said.

Bearing all this in mind, it offers the following:

Out of a hypothetical gallon of regular gasoline costing 58.7 cents at the pump, the API said, the oil company makes an average of 2 cents profit, also hypothetical, but a "ballpark figure, based on government estimates and company testimony." The profit margin, it said, has remained constant for several years, before as well as after the Arab oil boycott and the 400 per cent increase in the cost of foreign crude.

In fact, said the API, federal and state governments take six times as much in taxes as the companies earn in profits.

The API noted in using the profit figure of 2 cents per gallon that, while Exxon has reported making that much, Standard of California says it earns 1.5 cents, Mobil 1.4 cents, and Phillips Petroleum and Texaco one cent.

"This profit may be derived from the sale of crude oil, from marketing operations, or from a combination of operations in the production, refining and marketing areas, depending on the individual company," the API explained.

The largest single piece of the pie is the 21.5 cents, or 36.7 per cent of the total, that goes to cover the cost of crude oil at the wellhead, according to the API.

The next largest chunk is the 12 cents, or 20.4 per cent of the total, for state and federal taxes. The federal excise tax is 4 cents per gallon. While state taxes vary, the API assumed an average of 8 cents per gallon in its calculations.

The third largest piece of the 58.7-cent pie is the 10.7 cents, or 18.2 per cent, that goes to the dealer "to cover his operating costs at the service station and, hopefully, a profit for his endeavors."

According to the API breakdown, 7 cents, or 11.9 per cent, covers transportation costs: 2 cents for transportation of crude to the refinery, 3 cents for moving gasoline to the terminal, and another 2 cents to get it from the terminal to the service station.

The API also figures 4.5 cents, 7.7 per cent, covers oil company marketing costs, and 3 cents, or 5.1 per cent, refinery operations and maintenance.

The end result, the API said, is a profit of about 2 cents a gallon to the oil companies.

A little over 3 per cent went to the oil company for getting the entire job done — from finding the oil all the way to delivering the gasoline to the customer's tank.

Americana for Sale

CHEPACHET, R.I. (UPI) — Brown and Hopkins, unchallenged in its claim as the oldest continuously operated general store in America, is shopping for a new owner.

This slice of 19th-century Americana, complete with the traditional pot-bellied stove, has survived the economic ups and downs of at least 12 owners since 1809.

The current owners, Thomas and Cheryl Wright, are "selectively" selling the old two-story frame building, including its original fixtures, antiques and inventory.

Price: $55,000. The Wrights bought Brown and Hopkins last year. Two friends — Gil and Marge Peterson — took on active management and operations last fall.

Today's visitors include nostalgia and antique buffs and those fond of its famous cheddar cheese cut from 40-pound wheels or molasses freshly drawn from the 50-gallon wooden barrel that sits inside the front door.

"Gil and I don't feel we want to run it next year," Mrs.

A STEP BACK IN TIME

Peterson said. "We thought our boys (age 18 and 16) would be interested in helping run it but they are not. It is taking up a lot of time."

this village 18 miles west of Providence.

"They don't want to break that chain. Their main objective is to keep the country store still operating as it was," Mrs. Peterson said.

The Wrights hope to find a new owner who will keep the Main Street store open. Twelve upstairs rooms could be used for living quarters.

The store had a hitching post out front when it was opened 166 years ago by Ira P. Evans as a combination house, post office and store. It soon became the gathering place for

She hopes to return to her previous job as a teacher's aide in the local school system because "hours were good and I was off in summer."

"I had lots of time. My husband has a new job. Now I'm working every day 9-to-6 and trying to raise four children at the same time," Mrs. Peterson said.

Rules For Weak Two Bids

By Oswald & James Jacoby
 Jim: "We have had so many questions from readers about weak two bids that it seems appropriate to devote a few articles to them."

Oswald: "In standard American the opening bid of two in any suit is reserved for very strong hands. About thirty-five years ago, Howard Schenken and Edward Hymes, Jr., adopted an idea proposed by Dick Richardson and started to use two clubs as the only forcing opening bid while using the others to describe hands such as the one held by South. With nine high-card points, South is too weak to open with one. Normally, he would pass and back in, but it is much better to fire the first shot."

Jim: "In Jacoby Modern the weak two shows 7-10 high-card points and a good six-card suit. If partner wants to force, he responds two notrump. Opener bids three notrump with a solid suit, three of his own suit with a minimum (7 of 8) and shows a feature with a maximum (9 or 10)."

Oswald: "The lay-down slam is easy to bid this way. It should also be biddable after a pass by South, but when it was played in a duplicate game most passing South's reached game only."

A memorial honoring the late Robert J. (Red) Flannery of Kingston, who was killed in 1942 during the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, was recently presented to the Kingston Veterans Association by Kingston American Legion Post 150. The memorial will be located in front of the Veteran's Monument at the old city hall, where ceremonies commemorating Veterans Day will be held Tuesday. The memorial itself will be dedicated Dec. 7. Shown (L-R) are Jack Spader, post commander; John Fautz, chairman of the post's memorial committee; Benjamin Gulnick, chairman of the Kingston Veterans Association and Albert Fassbender of the Pearl Harbor Survivor's Association. 'Memories, Memories'

ANNANDALE
Alger Hiss. The name evokes memories of blacklists and blackmail, the Red scare and loyalty oaths, witchhunts and the psychology of fear, Joseph McCarthy and Richard Nixon.

Appearing somewhat uncomfortable in the role of would-be folk hero, Hiss was a guest lecturer at Bard College Saturday night. And despite being imprisoned for a crime he insists he didn't commit, Hiss seemed to have a somewhat more charitable view of the American political system, and its future, than many in the audience.

A former State Department official and president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, Hiss was one of the more prominent victims of "McCarthyism." In 1950 he was convicted of perjury despite his denial that he passed secret government documents to magazine editor and avowed former Communist party member Whitaker Chambers.

"I would think that the chances of McCarthyism being repeated in the future in this country are rather minimal," said Hiss, "a sophisticated electorate is not likely to be led by that kind of demagoguery. . . the reason is primarily education. A greater number of younger people today have had a more sophisticated contact with American history and the political system."

If that is true, asked one student in the audience, how does one explain the landslide election of Richard Nixon in 1972, the war in Vietnam that was continued and expanded despite widespread dissent and the enthusiastic support that President Ford received in his handling of the Mayaguez incident?

Hiss, however, wasn't deterred. He said it was the students and young people who helped drive Lyndon Johnson out of office and end the Vietnam War, and those same people who didn't bother to vote who helped Nixon win a second term in office in 1972. "In my travels across the country," he noted, "I have been struck by the consistency of the students' sophistication on political issues. . . I don't think they would tolerate another McCarthy."

McCarthy was not only tolerated, said Hiss, but encouraged. "He was quite representative of the broad political view in America at the time," Hiss stated, "he was a leader with followers. He seemed quite respectable at the time."

If there was anything disappointing about Hiss' speech Saturday night, it was that he dwelled more on the rise and fall of the McCarthy era than on his own crisis then and the continuing conflicts that he encounters now. He declined to state his own personal feelings about Nixon ("I don't think he's worth the time it would take") and touched only briefly on his current efforts to gain access to the more than 50,000 pages of information in his rather large dossier maintained by the FBI.

"Have you ever been, or are you now, a Communist," Hiss was asked. "No," was his succinct response.

He wasn't, however, as tight-lipped about the infamous late Senator who branded Hiss a Communist and a traitor. "McCarthyism is not a bad title for an ugly period in our country's history because he was an ugly man," said Hiss, "I have often been asked if McCarthy did any good at all, but I know of nothing. . ."

Hiss suggested that it was McCarthy's very character that eventually led to his downfall. Ridicule, he said, was a strong and effective weapon against the pervasive fear that was generated by the witchhunts of the 1950's. "No one was more an oaf than the would-be demagogue," he said, "there were those who turned that ridicule against the people who were trying to destroy others."

Freed from prison, fighting to clear his name and reputation, speaking wherever there are those who will listen, Hiss seems to be embarked on a personal campaign to prevent history and hysteria from repeating itself.

Parking Plan Breaks Down

KINGSTON
A three-way plan to provide attended parking on North Front Street has apparently broken down although the public will wind up with some (additional) free parking in the end.

The plan—discussed at some length by city, school district officials, and urban renewal agency representatives and Uptown Businessmen—was to combine property owned by the city on North Front Street (now a metered parking lot between Schecter's Supermarket and Frank's Sport Shop) with property owned by the Kingston Schools Consolidated (now used for free parking for its employees at its Crown Street offices) and the urban renewal agency (about a third of an acre of vacant land fronting on Green Street) to create a large attended parking lot.

The problem, according to urban renewal director James G. Connors, was that the school district had to have a certain amount of parking available to its employees and visitors during the day. Attended parking would have defeated that purpose.

The "way out," according to Connors was suggested by the school district. The school district will purchase the urban renewal property (for an agreed upon price of $5,000) convert it into parking space for its own use but make it available (free) to the public when not being used by the district which is to say evenings, weekends and holidays.

The request for approval of the school district's purchase of what is known as parcel 23 from the urban renewal agency tops the agenda for Monday night's regular meeting of the Common Council. (The Council meets the first Tuesday of the month except in November where the first Tuesday is election day).

Also on tap is a request from the Water Department for approval of a $50,000 revenue anticipation note the department wants to take out in order to tide it over during a period of short (cash) flow. The note will be on a short-term basis, probably 90 days.

There's a $75,000 claim against the city by Willie James London (no address given) who alleges that he was assaulted by city police officer Fred Parisi on Aug. 16.

The aldermen will convene at 7:30 p.m. Monday at city hall, 1 Meadow Street.
